Paris Faces Threat of General Walkout

Mines, Auto Plants Tied Up; Efforts to Form Government Are Intensified

Paris, Nov. 18 (AP).—Communist-led strikes tied up France's coal mines and most of the auto industry and threatened Paris with a general work stoppage tonight.

Socialist Premier Paul Ramadier intensified efforts to form a new, strong government to cope with the spreading crisis which was heightened by the calling of a meeting here tonight of the executive body of the General Confederation of Labor of the Paris region to debate calling of a general strike.

The Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor has ordered unions to demand a 3800-franc ($31) increase in the minimum monthly wage and 25 per cent salary advances pending negotiations. The minimum wage is now 7000 francs ($58).

114,000 Coal Miners Out

As a result: One hundred and fourteen thousand coal miners in the northern fields walked out.

Employees in the Renault, Hotchkiss, Panhard, Citroen and Ford automobile factories and the Gnome-Rhone truck plant went on strike.

Paris school teachers decided to strike Friday whether the government accepted their demands for salary advances or not. Other civil servants decided to await the government's answer.

A strike decision was debated in maritime union locals in the nation's ports. One national maritime strike was settled only a few weeks ago.

Paris' 4500 flour millers were joined in their walkout that began last week by millers in Lille and Marseilles.

Bank and city hall employees at Marseilles were voting tonight on whether to join the strike of waterfront, transport and industrial workers and taxi drivers in that city.

Spreads to All Ports

The Marseilles waterfront strike spread to all Mediterranean ports, when dockers at Sete walked out the second time in a week.

The Bordeaux dockers union indicated its unwillingness to unload ships redirected there from Marseilles.

At Marseilles, where 60,000 workers have tied up that Mediterranean port, the strike spread to all ports.

Two Killed as Mob Attacks Italian Police

Rome, Nov. 18 (AP).—Two Italian demonstrators were shot to death and 10 others wounded today in a nine-hour street battle in Corato between police and 5000 rioters, bringing to 14 the total killed in Italy's 14-day-old Communist-led "war of the public squares."

A battalion of the Ninth Infantry Regiment and a battalion of mobile police, with light tanks and armored cars, rushed into Corato from Bari and restored order to the town after a day of terrorism that drove many of the city's 42,000 residents into the countryside.

An army field radio report at 8:30 p. m. said calm had been restored. The report identified the casualties as two dead civilians, eight wounded civilians and two wounded policemen.

Four Towns Under Guard This report said the battle started when a mob of 5000 attacked central police headquarters. Firing broke out on both sides and the fight was carried through the streets with machine-guns, rifles, pistols and hand grenades.

Corato is 25 miles north of Bari and 50 miles south of Cerignola, where a similar gun battle last Saturday took three lives. Both towns are completely isolated, with telephone communications cut and the roads unsafe for travel.

Four other towns in the Puglia region—"bloody Puglia"—to Italians—remained under heavy police guard to prevent outbreaks. Police

D. C. Talks With King and Queen

By Lois Guerrieri Copyright, 1947, by The Washington Post

London, Nov. 18.—Today a dream I have had since childhood came true.

I talked with the Queen of England, met the King and got a really close view of Princess Elizabeth and Lieutenant Mountbatten.

I went to St. James's Palace to the tea party I had flown 3000 miles to attend without really expecting to get even a good look at the British royal family. It still seems like a dream that I should have talked with the Queen and the King out of all those people there.

Here is how it happened from the time I woke up this morning at 6 o'clock. I had nothing planned except the party for today but I had to get my hat fixed. The story really begins with my trip to the florist. If the people in America could see the stupendous wonders of almost artificial-looking blooms that I saw they would hold their breaths.

I chose two corsages of coral-colored lilies wired together. They are exactly like our forsythia at home in the early spring, only bigger than a 50-cent piece. One spray was on top of my head and the other was down the left side of my face.

The young lady who fixed it had helped arrange the flowers on the dinner table at Buckingham Palace for a dinner party there last night. She said they were the same kind of lilies I wore. She said they were mixed with yellow roses and pale yellow green orchids and looked beautiful with the gold dinner service.

I arrived at St. James's Palace at two-thirty on the dot. I had no trouble getting into the palace, though I was glad I had not lost the pink card they sent me with my invitation.

The rooms were very crowded. I would say that two out of every 10 women wore real pearls no matter how poorly they were dressed. Many feather hats were there and fur coats.

I did not get to see all of the presents and would go back now if I had another card and was sure some of that crowd was gone.

One present I particularly noticed was a luncheon box from Princess Margaret. Another gift and one that took my breath was a gold jewel-encrusted gift from the King of Siam.

I did not see the dress I had sent but then I did not expect to among all the thousands of presents that were there.

My big moment came just as I was about to enter the room where the gifts were on show. The guard told me the royal family were coming. He told me to wait behind him. Sure enough they came. Princess Elizabeth and Lieutenant Mountbatten were first. A

Negro School Transfer Put Off Third Time

Lee Rebukes Corning On Denying Fault In Heating Systems

The Board of Education's committee on buildings and grounds postponed for the third time yesterday action on the transfer of five white schools to use by Negro children.

Board Member Adelbert W. Lee rebuked Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning at the meeting for not being aware that a congressional committee was told last year that heating systems at the Blow and Webb schools need replacement because coal gas enters classrooms.

The two schools under the proposed transfer would be used to relieve overcrowding at the Negro Browne Junior High School.

Says Heating Plants Safe Lee said that he was "highly embarrassed" that such testimony "appears in congressional hearings in support of a request for replacement funds and that the superintendent of schools would refute it."

Corning, at public hearings on the proposed transfers a week ago, declared that the Blow and Webb heating plants were safe for operation.

"I dislike the implication that I am trying to cover something up," Corning said. "I have said before that the heating plants are old, outmoded and costly to operate. As in the case of other old schools they are on a schedule of replacement. From all the evidence I have, the heating plants are safe. The principals of the schools have assured me that they are satisfactory."

Case Against Tavern Dismissed

A Washington woman was jailed overnight as a drunk—although she was actually seriously ill—the Alcohol Beverage Control Board was told yesterday by her husband.

Charmie Atlas Thompson of 1312 Irving st. n.w. was incarcerated on drunk and disorderly charges, he informed the board, because he demanded noisily that his wife be given medical attention.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert D. Wise, who was prosecutor in the case, called it "an outrage."

The information was laid before the board as it opened a hearing on charges that Byrne Tavern, 1410 Irving st. n.w., had sold and delivered an alcoholic beverage to an intoxicated person.

The person referred to was Mrs. C. A. Thompson, who was employed as a waitress at the time. The hearing failed to produce

Soviet Aims Challenged By Marshall

European Recovery Being Deliberately Blocked, He Says In Policy Statement

(Marshall's Text, Page 8)

Chicago, Nov. 18 (AP).—Secretary of State George C. Marshall tonight accused Russia of deliberately blocking European recovery, and said the United States would refuse to "stand by and watch the disintegration of the international community to which we belong."

He asserted that the Soviets, for some mysterious reason, had chosen to destroy American good will built up for them during the war, and now had goaded this country almost to "active resentment" against their "brazen and contemptuous" foreign policy propaganda.

He said, however, he believed that, despite its strength, the United States could "afford to discount the alarms and excursions intended to distract us, and to proceed with calm determination along the path (to world peace) which our traditions have defined."

Pledges "Open" Mind His address, one of his major policy statements since he became Secretary of State, was delivered before the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations and the Chicago Chamber of Commerce in his last public appearance before leaving for the meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers in London November 25.

He promised to approach the London conference "with an open mind." He said that despite Russian opposition, he would work for an agreement to make Germany self-supporting without reviving her military might, and to put the vital important coal and steel industries of the Ruhr Valley into production for "the good of the European community as a whole."

Using some of the strongest diplomatic language he has ever employed, Marshall accused the Soviet Union of obstruction and cautioned that her propaganda campaign against United States foreign policy was affecting "the very stability of the world." He added bluntly:

"It is time to call a halt to such inflammatory practices. 'No Truth Whatever' Without naming any individuals, he said that 'Soviet officials and Communist groups' had been waging 'with increasing venom a calculated campaign of vilification and distortion of American motives in foreign affairs.'"

"These opponents of recovery charge the United States with imperialist design, aggressive purposes and finally with a desire to provoke a third world war," he continued.

"I wish to state emphatically that there is no truth whatsoever in these charges and I add that those who make them are fully aware of this fact."

Marshall's blasts against Russia were coupled with an expression of hope for continued world progress through the United Nations. He said the U. N. emerged from its Assembly meeting in New York "without loss of potential strength, despite the fact that much of its debate 'included more of vituperation or diatribe than of logic or adherence to the facts.'"

This was an obvious reference to Andrei Vishinskiy, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister.

"The question now is," Marshall said, "whether we go from here?"

Purity Varies With Schooling Dr. Kinsey's summary of results read: It is now clear that a child who happens to make sexual contacts, even at an early age, is quite capable of being aroused sexually, and may even respond in a fashion not fundamentally different from the sexual responses of an adult.

"Of still greater importance is the fact that the child's attitudes on sexual matters may be developed before he has any actual sexual experience, and even before he has any specific information concerning sex."

Young children learn, Dr. Kinsey explained, by attitudes concerning nudity, their own functions, and origins of babies.

"A child's companions," he stated, "are more often the source of its sexual attitudes than its own parents. Sexual habits among males are largely established by the middle teens, and totally new attitudes or types of sexual behavior are rarely developed after that age."

"Boys who go away from home after that age rarely become involved in sexual activities they would not have been involved in if they had stayed at home."

"Males who never go beyond grade school have sexual habits which differ from habits of the males who go into high school. These in turn differ from the group that goes to college. In each group there is a certain degree of acceptance of particular types of

Survey Finds 50% of Men In U. S. Guilty of Sex Crimes

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—A study of sex facts about white, American males, from childhood to old age, showing that more than half of them could go to jail as sex offenders at some time in their lives, was released today at Indiana University.

"It is correct to say," declared Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey, head of the study, "that if American sex codes and laws were enforced, more than half the male population would be considered criminal and be imprisoned at some time between adolescence and old age."

But he said this statement would not be true of the American's whole lifetime. It would be a phase at one time, rather than habitual, so that at any given time half of the men would not be subjects for jail.

This study started nine years ago, and to date covers 12,000 persons, male and female, and will ultimately be carried to 100,000. The 12,000 includes college professors, clergymen, psychiatrists, physicians, mechanics, clerks, all degrees of education, plus those who cannot read or write. They included all religious groups and those not active in churches. The statistics are considered accurate within 3 to 5 per cent.

The authors say they are offering no conclusions or criticisms, but seeking the scientific facts, and that this is a study of average, everyday Americans of every sort.

Lavish Spending Here Described Secretly-Owned Contract Plant Enriched Meyers by $94,081 in 1941-42, Probers Told

Profit Actually Paid By U. S., Witness Says

By Mary Spargo Post Reporter

A "dummy" was contracting firm secretly owned by Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers poured a steady stream of cash and luxuries totaling $94,081.38 into the AAF procurement officer's hands in 1941 and 1942, the Senate War Investigating Committee was told yesterday.

The other war years are still to come. The committee heard evidence yesterday on how income tax records were faked, and personal luxuries charged off against the cost of doing business on a subcontract for Army Air Forces equipment.

A series of Washington witnesses testified that the general, then starting his meteoric rise from major to major general, had paid $10,000 to decorate his apartment at the Hotel 2400 on 16th st., bought a $700 radio, installed air conditioning and purchased a swank blue Cadillac car—this last item three weeks before Pearl Harbor—all from checks on the Aviation Electric Co., Dayton, Ohio.

These wartime profits of the general, second-ranking officer in the Army Air Forces procurement of material for the fighting fronts, came from a subcontract with the Bell Aircraft Co., according to the evidence.

The subcontract totaled $162,918.62 and of that sum the net profit, eliminating the "fraudulently charged items like the car," was $95,382.33, according to Carmine Bellino, FBI-trained investigator and accountant for the committee.

Pointing out that the subcontract was part of the Bell Aircraft's expense of doing business with the Government, Chairman Homer Ferguson queried: "Then that profit was actually

CAA Official, Crew Die as Trans World Plane Burns at Port

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 18 (AP).—A Trans World Airline Constellation plane crashed and burned at the New Castle Airport after a training flight today, crashed and burned, killing all five occupants.

Barely missing the heavily traveled four-lane Dupont hwy., the big four-engine aircraft struck a ditch and went out of control, a TWA statement said.

There were no passengers. Victims were: Capt. F. X. Winkler, 28, whose father, Frank Winkler, lives in Buffalo, N. Y.

Canada Bans To Cost U. S. 300 Millions

By The Associated Press Canada's new restrictions on imports from the United States will mean a 300-million-dollar blow to American exporters and manufacturers, Government officials tentatively estimated yesterday.

The emergency controls, suddenly applied by the dollar-short Ottawa government last night, promised to hit American business harder than the repeated reductions in buying by Great Britain. Despite its much smaller population, Canada this year was easily the United States' best customer, buying at the unprecedented rate of nearly two billion dollars.

These Government officials said the United States regards the Canadian restrictions as a temporary "necessary evil" to be removed when Canada's financial position improves. The State Department was consulted in advance before the Canadians took the step, they said.

The American Government offered no objections, they said; because Canada probably would be forced to take more drastic action later had it permitted the drain on its scanty dollar resources to go unchecked.

Canadian Finance Minister Douglas Abbott disclosed in Ottawa as of November 13, Canada's supply of gold and United States dollars had sunk to 500 million dollars, a drop of 745 million dollars in less than 11 months.

Abbott said that the United States Export-Import Bank, besides promising Canada a credit of 300 million dollars, had offered a bonus of $7 per ounce for increased gold production.

One bright spot in the picture, United States officials said, is that the Canadians may have to increase purchases of available American raw materials in order to counteract the effects of the new controls.

Reds, GOP Alike To S. C. Democrat

Right to Exclude Them in Primary
Along With Negroes Argued in Court

Baltimore, Nov. 18 (AP).—South Carolina Democrats pleaded in Federal Court today their party is like an exclusive country club and no Negroes, Communists, Republicans or "any people like that" are allowed.

The party also has a constitutional right to exclude women or bowlegged men, its lawyers argued in Federal Court.

On these grounds, party officers asked the Fourth U. S. District Court of Appeals to overrule a lower court decision that Negroes are entitled to vote in the State's Democratic primaries—the only elections which mean anything in South Carolina.

The three-judge court, after a two-hour hearing, took the arguments under advisement. A decision is not expected for several days.

"We think any question we haven't rejoined the Union is absolutely wrong," said former United States Senator Christie Benet. "We fought in three wars."

District Judge J. Walter Waring said July 12 at Charleston, S. C., that "It is time for South Carolina to rejoin the Union" and ruled that Negroes have a right to vote in the "white primaries."

Attorneys for 60 defendants appealed this decision in the case of George Elmore vs. Clay Rice et al. Both sides concede that Elmore, a Negro, was "denied the right to vote" in a primary last year at Columbia, S. C.

The defendants — Democratic committeemen and primary election managers — contend that they are not State officials and the right to vote is guaranteed "only where the primary is an essential part" of the statutory election machinery.

Attorneys made the point today that the party can't be charged with discriminating against Negroes because some of the membership restrictions also exclude whites.

"How do you manage to discriminate against the white people?" asked Judge Morris A. Soper.

"We wouldn't take any Republicans or Communists or any people like that," replied Belser.

"Could you exclude women, lawyers, soldiers, veterans, bowlegged men—anybody you want?" asked Judge Armistead Dobie at another point.

"That's right," said Belser.

"We ought to withdraw from the United Nations and close up shop" if the country club claim is upheld, argued Thurgood Marshall, counsel for the National Advancement of Colored People, representing Elmore.

Belser said it was "substantially were paid as returns of Lamarre and Readnow than they would if the general had paid taxes on the whole sum he was getting.

Purpose in First Place

"Yes, I was aware of that," the witness replied. "That was the purpose of doing it that way in the first place."

Lamarre disclosed that Readnow was drafted over company attempts to get him a deferment, but his $100-a-month wages went on anyway because the company continued to pay his "faked" $13,000 salary to Meyers. Readnow wound up as a sergeant in the Army Air Forces at Wright Field, back in Dayton, Ohio, where he started.

Meyers got his money from the "executive salaries" in cash, Lamarre testified.

First, he said, he used to give it to the general in cashier's checks. Then late in 1941 the general said that cashier's checks were "too easy to trace." (Photostats of all these have already been put into evidence.)

Made Payments in Person

After that, Lamarre said, he had to make the payments in person. Sometimes he came to Washington; sometimes the general came to Dayton.

For a while he frequently handed over the general's money in thousand-dollar bills.

Then he found out the Treasury Department was checking on all bills of such large denomination, so he got smaller greenbacks,

Stassen Hits Taft's 'Miserly' Attitude on Aid

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

New Orleans, Nov. 18.—Harold E. Stassen went after Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio tonight for his "confusion" and "miserly attitude" in a great moment of history, and called upon the Republican Party to give all-out support to the Marshall Plan.

In a major speech in this romantic city of the deep South, Stassen urged that Congress approve "in full" the six billion dollar sum recommended by the Harriman Committee for the first year under the European recovery program.

(Senator Taft, in a speech in New York on November 10, said, "The figure suggested by the Harriman Committee is higher than is safe.")

Stassen gave this counsel to the GOP:

"I plead with the members of our Republican Party not to become afflicted with a chronic fixation of opposition. I plead with them not to permit the approaching national elections to swerve them from a high purpose of service to the country."

City Officials Join Welcome

"We must in this hour, in the face of the fundamental clash of ways of life so evident in the attitude of the Soviet Union, lift our sights as our forefathers did in other great moments of history."

Stassen, hunting delegates in his drive for the Republican presidential nomination, flew to New Orleans today from Arkansas.

Here, as in Little Rock, Democratic city officials joined with GOP leaders in a welcome at the airport. Mayor De Lesseps Morrison gave Stassen a golden key to the city and had a police scout car pilot his motorcycle to the Roosevelt Hotel.

The former Minnesota Governor spoke tonight at Tulane University at a meeting sponsored jointly by Tulane, the Foreign Policy Association and International House. Approximately 2000 persons turned out for the occasion.

It was the first time on this 12-State tour that Stassen had attacked Taft, one of his declared rivals for the Republican nomination. As on Saturday, when he taunted Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York for being an evasive "me-too" politician, Stassen mentioned no names tonight. But again it was not necessary.

Hits Taft Republicans

After pointing out that the European recovery program was an American program, developed by Republicans as well as Democrats, Stassen very definitely made Taft and like-minded Republicans his target as he said:

"I have been disturbed with some reports indicating an attitude to so reduce the totals involved in the program that it would in fact destroy the prospects of success of this very significant venture."

"It is of crucial importance that Congress overwhelmingly adopt the European recovery program as it has evolved from the Marshall Plan."

"It is so true that a job worth doing is worth doing well. Clearly the American people have decided that . . . setting up a humanitarian blockade against totalitarianism is worth doing . . ."

"I urge, therefore, that our Republican Party give complete support to the European recovery program."

Program Could Help U. S.

He said that the Harriman Committee, which included a number of "the ablest Republicans in America in the fields of business and finance," had made "a remarkable report."

"I urge that the amounts of aid that are recommended (by the Harriman Committee) should be voted in full as they have been subjected to the most careful study and analysis on a bipartisan basis that any major program has ever been subjected to in America . . ."

anav "In the long-term view we definitely have a greater prospect of a future of economic stability, of high employment, of avoiding boom and bust, if we meet this program successfully and develop again a large number of nations operating as democracies in both economic, social and political policies with steadily increasing standards of living for their own people."

Accuses Taft Indirectly

Stassen sought throughout his speech to demolish arguments made by Senator Taft in his November 10 speech. Indirectly he accused Taft of laboring under some "major confusions." He had the Ohioan in mind, too, when he said:

"Is it not a false assumption to conclude that American production would be as high if we take a miserly attitude as it will be if we meet this great need?"

"It is my view that if we chal-

"I'm in the doghouse from here on out, probably have to get out of business," said he.

"A lot of people will probably hate me for the rest of their lives for having the audacity to criticize Wright Field."

On the serious side, Hughes said yesterday he expects to fly his 25-million-dollar plywood flying boat which made a 1-mile hop at 70 feet November 2, next March or April, then test it for perhaps a year.

County Rallies to Aid Of Legless War Veteran

Frostburg, Md., Nov. 18 (AP).—Allegany County did not "forget" War Veteran Wilbert Beaman. Beaman, who lost both his legs on a German battlefield, faced a problem with the new house he is building at Gilmore. A bridge spanning a stream between his house and a highway was falling to pieces.

The county commissioners donated surplus materials, County Engineer Albert S. Payne drew the plans and volunteers rolled up their sleeves to build a new concrete and steel bridge.

Princess Could Dip Into King's Sock

Savings From Father's $1,640,000 Salary Would Piece Out Own $60,000 Yearly

London, Nov. 18 (AP).—King George VI today offered to increase Princess Elizabeth's $60,000 annual government allowance out of his own savings in order to avoid a "burden" on his subjects in a time of economic stress.

In a message to Parliament that evoked thunderous cheers, the sovereign said he, rather than the government, should put up whatever additional money the princess and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten will need after their wedding Thursday.

It had been expected that the treasury would boost the princess' income and award a separate allowance to Philip out of public funds.

The King's reference to savings referred to money allocated for state entertainments and functions

Rep. Ramey Hits Wedding Costs in View of Aid Plea

Representative Ramey (R., Ohio) yesterday sharply criticized the cost of Princess Elizabeth's wedding in view of England's appeals for economic aid.

Ramey, not mentioning the Princess by name, told the House: "An English noblewoman has received two million dollars' worth of jewels and finery at the same time her people sent out an appeal for help to us. In view of that, I wonder whether America should listen to such appeals, as many American children plan to go without their Thanksgiving dinner this year in order to sacrifice."

which were largely canceled during the war.

George's income from the government totals $410,000 ($1,640,000 a year, tax exempt). Correspondents speculated that what the King has saved, plus what Elizabeth gets from the government (non-tax-exempt), will enable the

Mrs. Guerrieri Sees Princess

Little lady beside me stepped in front of me to shake hands with the princess. When they stopped, I got a really close view of her.

Of course, she is lovely. She had a dove-colored dress with a hemline cut into little points. She also wore a blue fox jacket and her hat was a wreath of gray felt leaves to match her dress exactly.

By her side was Lieutenant Philip in his naval uniform. He is very handsome.

The King and the Queen were close behind and I would not budge for anyone. The Queen stepped up first and shook hands with a man standing on my left, then she turned to me.

She took my hand and smiled and I said to her, "I am Mrs. Guerrieri and I have come from America."

The Queen nodded and said, "Oh, you did."

I said, "Yes, I sent the green taffeta dress to Princess Elizabeth from America."

The Queen then asked me where

Lois Guerrieri, 1724 S. St. se., received an invitation to the afternoon party at St. James's Palace after she had made and sent a dress to Princess Elizabeth.

She was sent to London via TWA by The Washington Post and is writing a series of articles on her experiences.

She left New York Sunday and will return this weekend. Her husband, Louis, an employee of the District engineering department, took leave from his job to care for their four children during her absence.

I was staying in London and I told her at the Royal Court Hotel. I added that it was the only hotel I could get into and the Queen nodded. I told her that it was my first trip abroad and that I was writing stories for The Washington Post.

The Queen then asked me, "Are you enjoying yourself?"

I told her, "Yes."

All this time the Queen had been holding my hand. She dropped it then and took the King's arm and told him I was from America.

The King shook my hand and said, "How do you do?"

Then they both smiled and nodded and moved along.

I was too weak in my knees to bow and could not have gotten up had I curtsied.

It must have been my head-dress that drew the Queen's attention to me for I was as pale as a ghost from excitement.

Chest Drive Here Reaches 54.1% of Goal

Contributions and subscriptions to the Community Chest Federation campaign have passed the two-million mark and 54.1 per cent of the $3,900,000 goal has been achieved, it was announced yesterday.

At the Federation's fifth report luncheon yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce Building, it was announced there have been 179,592 pledges for a total of $2,109,352.55.

Edward H. Foley, jr., chairman of the Chest Drive this year, told the luncheon that at a comparable stage in last year's campaign only 43 per cent of the goal had been realized.

"We are ahead of last year," said Foley, "but there is still a great deal of hard work ahead of us."

This was the progress reported yesterday by the various units:

Business No. 1, 51.6 per cent of its quota with $794,153.

He paid tribute to those "devoted men" who have worked hard in Community Chest campaigns.

Miss Malvina Lindsay, columnist of The Washington Post, will be guest speaker at the luncheon.

are in their teens—and I suppose, before many more years, they'll be calling the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society and asking for Nurse Edith Dickerson to help them through their pregnancies. It's a nice feeling when they remember you."

Service Available to All

Mrs. Dickerson, who lives at 5614 1st pl. nw., is typical of the nurses who are members of the society.

The whole staff of graduate, registered public health nurses is available for bedside nursing and the teaching of hygiene and sanitation in any home in the District of Columbia.

The kind of care the nurse gives in the home, in addition to instruction in sanitation, may include a bed bath, surgical dressing, an irrigation, a hypodermic injection, massage for fracture cases, prenatal, maternity and new-born baby care, or any other type of nursing done by graduate nurses in hospitals or homes. This care is given on a full-pay, part-pay or free basis, depending on the economic status of the patient.

Happened on Peritonitis

Frequently, these nurses handle emergency cases—and sometimes quite by accident. A nurse went into the home of a woman who was expecting a baby in a few days only to find that her 17-year-old daughter was moaning with pain. She had complained of a severe stomachache five days previously, and now her abdomen was hard and distended, and she was running a temperature of 104.

The nurse telephoned these symptoms to a doctor and arranged for a free ambulance and free hospitalization for the girl, and Anderson, Mrs. W. Averell Harriman and Mrs. Lewis B. Schwellenbach, wives of Cabinet members, and Mrs. Nellie Talbot Ross, director of the Bureau of the Mint.

Top officers of the Residential Unit who will be at the luncheon include Mrs. Waldron Faulkner, Miss Cecil Lester Jones, Mrs. William B. Kuhns, Mrs. Thomas Biggam, Mrs. William E. Linden and Mrs. Adele Worthington.

The Residential Unit is seeking to oversubscribe its quota of $537,500. Its 2400 workers are making a house-to-house and apartment-to-apartment canvas for pledges. The unit also covers some small neighborhood business firms.

A unit of the Marine Band will furnish music at the luncheon.

to lock her husband up when the officer on the scene said he wasn't drunk enough to charge."

The case against the tavern was then dismissed.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson were arrested October 14 after Mrs. Thompson collapsed in the tavern. She was locked up at the Woman's Bureau and he was detained at the Tenth Precinct Station.

Later, both forfeited collateral because "we didn't have the money to hire a lawyer and go to court," according to Thompson. Apparently assuming they were guilty because of the forfeiture, Assistant Corporation Counsel Wise called them as Government witnesses against the tavern.

But the couple—and Dr. Robert Miller, an interne at Emergency Hospital—turned the tables on the Government's case at the hearing. Asked pointedly whether Mrs. Thompson was drunk at the time he was summoned to Byrne's Tavern, Dr. Miller asserted:

"I couldn't say that . . . I don't know how much was due to alcohol and how much to some past pathology."

Thompson, manager of Daly's Food Shop, 3207 14th st. nw., testified that his wife had had 1½ glasses of beer—her first in months—when she "commenced trembling" and collapsed over a table. He sent for an ambulance, Thompson said, and police arrived too.

"Police said she was drunk," Thompson told the board. "I said she's not drunk. I said I want to get her to a hospital. I had seen her this way many times before."

Thompson said his wife was taken to the Woman's Bureau despite his protests and he followed immediately in a cab. At the bureau, he testified, he told officers "she needs a doctor . . . she'll die in here" but "they pushed me out . . . and threatened to lock me up."

He said he was thrown out twice and then arrested on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

Thompson testified he found his wife "very, very sick" the next morning. He said she was "crying . . . shaking and nervous."

Pvt. Charles F. Lowery, the arresting officer, told the board he found Mrs. Thompson "laying over a table" and asserted:

"I would say she was drunk."

Although there were only three women in the hearing room—one of them a board member—Lowery was unable to identify Mrs. Thompson.

Later Mrs. Thompson told a reporter she was subject to fainting spells and had been hospitalized last year because of them. Doctors, she said, described her ailment as "stomach spasms," caused by

By the time she left, the father's nerves were quiet, and he felt he had command of the situation. After several days of treatment at the hospital, the new mother came home and, the nurse reports, made a nice recovery.

It's all in a day's work to the nurses, but it may be last time in a lifetime if they aren't there, ready to serve. And this is one of the agencies of the Community Chest Federation which you help support with your contribution.

ondary rays as they approach the earth. The solar radio waves that cause them, he said, also produce other effects, such as the light of the night sky and aurora borealis.

Heretofore, the origin of cosmic rays has variously been explained as due to bursting stars, the creation of matter—presumed to be helium—in outer space, and the rays remaining from an explosion of a gigantic radio-active atom some 10 million years ago.

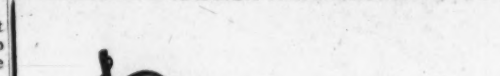

Dr. Thornton, reporting on recent experiments with the 184-inch cyclotron, said that the stepped-up power will yield important information about the structure of the nucleus.

Already, he said, fission has been observed for atomic numbers as low as tantalum, but, he added cautiously, such fission has no immediate application in the use of atomic energy.

A new mathematical method in which scientists may work out the secrets of the structure of proteins, building blocks of the human body, was outlined at yesterday's morning session by Dr. David Harker, General Electric Co. scientist.

Developed jointly by Dr. Harker and Dr. J. S. Kasper, also of the G-E research laboratory, it provides a system of studying crystals under an X-ray beam for their diffraction patterns and, by formula, through to a picture of their atomic structure.

Rain Sweeps Child To Death in Sewer

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
SHERRON ROTHROCK, 5, who had been walking between her father, Dean Rothrock, and an aunt across a rain-swept residential street intersection in Seattle Monday night, plunged into an open sewer manhole and was swept away by the swift waters 12 feet below. Her body was not found until late yesterday near the shore of Puget Sound, after floating through miles of city sewers.

"If we don't save them, we will lose all we fought for in a very important area of the world. And we will not have another chance." Officials of the four Washington daily newspapers were seated at the head table during the meeting and were introduced by the club president, Frank Gatewood. This was Meyer's fourth speech before the club, Gatewood said.

Speaking in deliberate, even tones, heavy with conviction, Meyer told the club the "outstanding single circumstance in western Europe," in his opinion, was "two bad harvests, caused by a series of bad weather conditions not equalled in more than 100 years." The resulting food shortage was "one of the most critical factors, if not the most critical, in both the political and economic climate of Europe," he emphasized. Meyer explained that "inadequate food in Europe is the root of inadequate production." He vigorously denied allegations that Europe's troubles stemmed from laziness or indifference, explaining that the food cuts resulted in less stamina in workers and diversion of their efforts from productive work to coping with the black market to get essential foods. Pointing out the facets of the food problem on this side of the Atlantic, he warned that Americans must realize that "this fall, unfortunately, has been the driest in 60 years in Kansas, Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle." This means the wheat harvest "can at best be only normal" and not a bumper crop as in recent years, he noted. For this reason, Americans "have to cut down on our domestic consumption of wheat and wheat products." "During the shooting phase of the war, no one wanted to be in a position of feeling that he had done less than he might have. So it is now; all of us must be able to feel later that we have done everything possible for the benefit of the world and for ourselves, and for the people of Europe," he said. Spelling out the alternative, Meyer declared with feeling that

D. C. Divided Over Price, Ration Request

President Truman's proposals for limited price and ration controls met with mixed reactions in the District.

The executive secretary of the Washington Restaurant Association, Robert J. Wilson, commented: "The Washington restaurant industry feels the people are definitely against the return to rationing and price control. Enactment of these proposals will mean a return of the black market and many extra worries for eating place operators. Other plans could be worked out which would be much better."

The industry advisory committee of the National Restaurant Association will hold an all-day closed session today at the Mayflower Hotel and the President's proposals are expected to be high on the agenda.

Hopes for Prompt Action

The Washington Consumers Protection Committee, which has been waging a vigorous campaign for a return to price control and rationing, heartily approved the recommendations.

Mrs. Sarah Newman, chairman, said, "We are delighted to have the President come out for resumption of price control and rationing. We hope Congress will not argue over the proposals too long and will pass them promptly. Our feeling is that the people all over the country want them."

J. Walter Smith, executive secretary of the District Wholesale Fruit and Produce Association, said

Poultry Price Rises; Butter Drops 1 Cent

Poultry prices climbed from 1 to 2 cents a pound this week as butter, which has been moving steadily upward for the past two weeks, dropping one cent a pound.

Max Bressler, head of the wholesale poultry division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, reported chickens were up 1 1/2 to 2 cents a pound over last week and turkey jumped 1 to 2 cents a pound, depending on size.

Henry Males, head of the butter division of the association, said butter may drop as much as 5 cents before long. He said dealers realized sales were dropping because of the high prices and were cutting prices even though little butter is in storage for the winter demand.

fruit and vegetable men differed on the proposals.

"Some certainly wouldn't object to some sort of price control. They feel that people are economizing on food. Movies, autos and clothes are

Livesay to Direct Greek Army Advice

U. S. Staff Also to Serve in Liaison Capacity, Not Take Blame for Defeats

Athens, Greece, Nov. 18 (AP)—Dwight Griswold, head of the American Aid Mission, said today that Maj. Gen. William D. Livesay has been named chairman of a United States Army, Navy and air staff which will serve with the Greek army as advisers as well as liaison officers. "We are not going to command the Greek army," Livesay told newsmen later. "As soon as we get proper authority, we will advise it. But if we advise an attack which fails, it will be the Greeks' responsibility."

Asked whether Americans would enter combat areas, Livesay said they would if their work as observers required it.

rampan port since last week's riots, the crew of the American freighter Henry C. Costin passed a resolution of sympathy with the strikers. The ship was immobilized by the strike, but the crewmen themselves remained on the job. The Communist newspaper L'Humanite of Paris said the crew's resolution was adopted with only two opposing votes and declared support of the strikers "in your courageous struggle against the imperialism of the Marshall Plan."

Troops continued to unload perishable goods from ships in Marseilles Harbor.

(In New York, Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union (N.M.U.), said the ship committee of the vessel had informed him the French government "threatens use of military to discharge cargo." Curran said he had sent this reply: "Contract calls for safe working conditions. If they do not exist you cannot work. However, there must be no interference in labor dispute there unless and until we are asked for assistance by the World Federation of Trade Unions officially. Advise immediate contact with American consul to protect crew from possible false charges of mutiny.")

Paul Reynaud, former wartime premier representing rightists non-DeGaulle elements, was reported to have entered strong Socialist objection to any government he might form. Ramadier thereupon took over negotiations for a new cabinet by conferring with his socialist-parliamentary group and executive committee and then with Reynaud. He also saw the Socialist veteran, Leon Blum. The possibilities of a new government were now believed to

Trial of 2 Deputies Asked For Part in Marseille Riots

Paris, Nov. 18 (NYHT)—Edouard Depreux, Socialist Minister of the Interior, called upon the National Assembly today to bring two Communist Members of Parliament to trial as ringleaders in last week's riots at Marseille.

"The gravity of these riots," he told the assembly, "cannot be isolated from a whole series of national and international events and the policies of a certain international party."

Depreux, who controls the nation's police and internal security troops, noted that "the timing between the Marseille riots and simultaneous rioting in several of Italy's largest cities is inescapable."

He added that last month there had been other outbreaks of mob violence at Verdun and at Nancy, but these had been repulsed by government security forces.

"None of these events would have taken place in France," he said, "without the express intention of the French Communist Party."

He read telegrams from police in Marseilles which named as two of the ringleaders in the riots: The outgoing Communist mayor of Marseilles, Jean Cristofol. Cristofol, a member of the assembly, was present—and Andre David, a Communist member of the other House of Parliament, the Council of the Republic.

Depreux demanded that parliamentary immunity be removed from the two legislators immediately and the tumult began. After four hours the debate was adjourned until Thursday.

Cristofol described Marseilles riots as a "spontaneous outbreak of public indignation" over the recent

Deputies to Get Two Agenda

London, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Deputy Foreign Ministers tossed to their chieftains today the question of whether the future of Austria or Germany should get top billing at the sessions of the four-power Foreign Ministers Council opening here in just one week.

The deputies decided to submit two agenda, one outlining the position of the Soviet Union and the other the stand of the United States, Britain and France.

A British conference informant said the deputies might tomorrow adjourn until their superiors give them new instructions.

Former Treasury Aide Asks Cut in Spending

Greensboro, N. C., Nov. 18 (AP)—John W. Hanes of New York, former Undersecretary of the Treasury, told a regional meeting of businessmen and industrialists here today that economic aid to Europe could be supplied without maintaining present tax rates, and he called for a sharp cut in Federal expenditures. The former Winston-Salem industrialist said aid for Europe and tax relief could be realized "provided the Government itself begins to practice that spirit of going without—of observing that very austerity which Washington officials are now preaching to the American people."

set up road blocks and checked on all persons entering or leaving Andria, Minervino, Barletta and Trani. A carabinieri officer in Minervino was seized by a mob and disarmed, but later released.

Threats of further violence tomorrow were seen in a call for a general strike in the Puglia region, issued by the Labor Leader Giuseppe di Vittorio.

The fighting in Corato was viewed in Rome political circles as a new Communist attack on Premier Alcide de Gasperi.

Authoritative political sources confirmed that De Gasperi is taking active steps to broaden his Christian Democrat cabinet by taking in central and leftist ministers.

No Communists, however, will be admitted, these sources said.

The Communist Party organ Unita said that Communist Leader Palmiro Togliatti spoke to a secret meeting of the Milan Communist Party last night, declaring the Communist Party line "will pass to revolutionary action" should Communists lose in the elections next March.

Togliatti also was reported to have urged his henchmen to get a stronger grip on Italian trade-unions "in the struggle for the defense of peace and democracy."

Violence broke out in nine other towns of Italy today.

At Crezza, a mob was driven off by police when they attacked the home of industrialist Salvatore Invenizzi. At Legnano, a hand grenade was thrown at the home of industrialist Ubaldo Ranzi.

A Common Man Party office was burned at Pomezia. A mob at Ferrara released from jail a Communist arrested for a raid. At Taranta, all political meetings were banned by the prefect when a partial strike was called, and there were minor disturbances at Pollignano. Numerous houses in the Milan area were plastered with signs, "Here Lives a Fascist" or "Here Lives a Monarchist."

Partial Text of Secretary Marshall's Speech Accusing Russia

8 THE WASHINGTON POST
Wednesday, November 19, 1947

Chicago, Nov. 18 (U.P.)—Partial text of Secretary of State George C. Marshall's address to a dinner jointly sponsored by the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations and the Chicago Chamber of Commerce:

NO American, I am sure, questions the desirability of this country promoting wherever it can the right of people to govern themselves and the rule of impartial law as against the exercise of arbitrary power. These principles require no elaboration. But, true as they are, such generalities do not always serve to clarify for our people the current problems with which we are now faced. They do not in themselves provide an answer as to why at almost every turn we find ourselves in disagreement with another power with whom we were so recently allied in the common cause.

I shall tonight confine myself to the problems relating to one area of the world which at the moment are occupying the attention of the Administration and the Congress and with which in another aspect I will be dealing at the meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers which opens in London November 23. That is the related problem of the revival of the European community and the peace settlements with Germany and Austria.

Due to the Nazi attempt to subjugate the entire European community, Europe was plunged into a great war. The central question that arose at the end of this war was, in effect, what was to be the future of this European community. Was it to be restored to a position of stability so it could work out its own problem or was it to be kept in a state of permanent dependency and eventual absorption into a system alien to its traditions and civilization?

It is generally recognized that the major responsibility for finally crushing nazism devolved upon three powers, none of which can be strictly classed as a continental European state. The efforts of two of these powers have been consistently directed since the military victory toward the restoration of the European community to its former status.

They have been so directed partly out of compassion, but primarily, I think, because they recognized the historical fact that a revived, revitalized Europe is necessary to a peaceful and prosperous world order.

UNFORTUNATELY, it has become apparent that the third great power which contributed so much to the common victory evidently does not share that purpose. For reasons that are still obscure, it is endeavoring apparently to prolong the present unsatisfactory state of affairs indefinitely. If this purpose prevails, obviously the prosperous European community we knew before the war cannot be reestablished within the foreseeable future.

This brings me to an important conclusion. It is this divergence of purpose concerning the future of Europe which is the cause of many of the present differences between the United States and Soviet Russia. The divergence is not due to any direct clash between the national interests of these powers.

It is my belief that if Europe is restored as a solvent and vigorous community, this issue will have been decided and the disturbing conflict between ourselves and the Soviets, insofar as Europe is concerned, will lessen.

It seems evident that as regards European recovery, the enlightened self interest of Europe itself and of all those who desire to see conflicts of whatever nature resolved, so that the world can devote its full attention and energy to the progressive improvement of the well-being of mankind. The place to begin that process is Europe.

THE near collapse of Europe has left weakness where once there was strength, and has created in effect a political and economic vacuum. It is certainly not our purpose to exploit the situation by filling the vacuum with American power. The map of Europe today bears witness of our true intentions.

If the United States entertained any idea of extending American influence or domination over Europe, our policy would not be directed toward ending European dependency upon this country, but toward perpetuating that relationship. The clarity of the record and of our intentions, however, has not prevented Soviet officials and Communist groups elsewhere from waging with increasing venom a calculated campaign of vilification and distortion of American motives in foreign affairs. These opponents of recovery charge the United States with imperialist design, aggressive purposes, and finally with a desire to provoke a third world war.

I wish to state emphatically that there is no truth whatever in these charges, and I add that those who make them are fully aware of this fact.

As regards the critical attitude recently manifested in this country toward the Soviet Union, I should like to distinguish between this effect and its cause. To determine that cause it is necessary to go back at least as far as the summer of 1945 immediately following the German surrender. At that time I think it was a fact that the people of the United States had as high a regard, or I might better put it, appreciation, for the Soviet people and their sacrifices, and for the Soviet army and its leaders, as they held for any other people in the world.

But today, only two years later, we are charged with a definite hostility toward the Soviet Union and its people, which constitutes a complete change in our attitude since the summer of 1945.

I recognize this effect. I would not characterize it as hostile. But the important question is, what produced this tremendous change in our national feeling and attitude? The truth as I see it is that from the termination of hostilities down to the present time the Soviet government has consistently followed a course which was bound to arouse the resentment of our people.

JUST what the purpose of this remarkable procedure has been, particularly during 1946, I have been at a loss to determine. So many of the actions of that government were provocative without any other evident purpose. I have endeavored to find at least a partial explanation in the historical characteristics of the Russian government and its officials through a long period of years and not solely related to the present regime. While some light can thus be cast on the problem it does not, even in a small way, explain why a government should proceed with apparent deliberation to destroy the invaluable asset of high regard and good will which it possessed in the attitude of the American people and why it should deliberately provoke such animosities as are evident at this time.

The people of this country are God-fearing people. They have been very patient in their attitude toward misrepresentation of their actions and motives when their only purpose has been to help the other fellow. Today our people have been virtually driven into a state of active resentment and, being so goaded to this point, they are accused of having lapsed and stoked this great fire of public resentment. This last is propaganda, yes, of the most brazen and contemptuous character. But since it affects the very stability of the world, it is time to call a halt to such inflammatory practices.

I am not pessimistic regarding the progress made by the United Nations during the recent Assembly meeting. The fact that the world has a forum for free debate is in itself a hopeful portent for the future. The fact that debates have sometimes included more of vituperation or diatribe than of logic or adherence to the facts was unfortunate but in the long run, I think, merely incidental, and an always present possibility in any democratic debate. The organization did pass through a serious struggle but I think it emerged without loss of potential strength. The question now is, where do we go from here, which leads me to the coming conference of foreign ministers in London.

THE PROBLEM of restoring the European community inevitably raises in acute form the problem of Germany. The restoration of Europe involves the restoration of Germany. Without a revival of German production there can be no revival of Europe's economy. But we must be very careful to see that a revived Germany could not again threaten the European community.

I am not speaking of the revival of Germany in a military sense. There can be no question of the absolute necessity of keeping Germany disarmed and demilitarized.

stored Europe. There is an imperative necessity for safeguards to insure that the economic power of Germany shall not be used by a future German government as a weapon for the furtherance of exclusively German policies. This poses admittedly a complicated and difficult problem. An attempt artificially to limit German peacetime economy could easily prevent the essential revival of German production to an extent that would render impossible the economic revival of Europe.

The answer to the problem would appear to relate primarily to the future role and functioning of the great industrial complex in the Ruhr. The United States believes that safeguards must be set up to insure that the resources and industrial potential of the Ruhr, particularly in respect to coal and steel, should not be left under the exclusive control of any future German government but should be used for the benefit of the European community as a whole.

With safeguards against any revival of German militarism and with measures to assure the utilization of the basic products of the Ruhr for the good of the European community as a whole, I believe that Europe and the world will be adequately protected against the danger of future German domination. In these circumstances it should be possible to proceed to the establishment of a provisional central authority in a federated German state, and to the final framing of a peace settlement. We shall earnestly endeavor at the conference in London to make progress along these lines.

We are aware of the seriousness and extent of the campaign which is being directed against us as one of the bulwarks of western civilization. We are not blind to any of the forms which this attack assumes. And we do not propose to stand by and watch the disintegration of the international community to which we belong.

But at the same time we are aware of our strength and of the fact that there is great need in many countries for our help and our friendship, we can afford to discount the alarms and excursions intended to distract us and to proceed with calm determination along the path which our traditions have defined.

I will approach this conference in London with an open mind and will seek only for a sound basis for agreement. I will seek to avoid statements for mere popular or propaganda effect, no matter what the provocation. It is my purpose to concentrate solely on finding an acceptable basis of agreement to terminate the present tragic stalemate and to speed the advent of a new era of peace and hope for Europe and the world.

At Wallace Talks:

Klan Wants Segregation — Or Else

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 18 (U.P.)—Grand Dragon Samuel Green of the Ku Klux Klan said today that unless city officials of Macon and Atlanta enforce segregation laws during the scheduled appearances of Henry Wallace "we'll see them later."

Green emphasized the Klan had planned no demonstrations at the Wallace lecture in Macon tomorrow and here Thursday night.

In the Wheat Street Baptist Church, a Negro church, sponsors of the Wallace speech, the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, have announced that whites and Negroes will sit side by side.

Pan American Unit Urged To Spot Reds

Creation of a "Pan American Congress" whose purpose would be to spot Communist activities in the Western Hemisphere was advocated yesterday by Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.), chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Speaking at the second closed session of the American Legion's counternative seminar here, Representative Thomas said the continental group would be a medium for exchange of information on subversive activities.

The proposed Congress, he explained, would extend control and surveillance over dangerous subversive factions whose members had skipped across borders of countries in which they had created disorder.

Would Up Contempt Penalties

The Congressman of three Western Hemisphere governments "have contacted me and we have discussed the plan." Preliminary plans call for annual meetings, alternating sites among various countries. "Before another six months is up," he predicted, "we will make some headway in bringing about such a plan."

He also called for congressional approval of legislation raising maximum penalties for persons guilty of contempt of Congress to a fine of $10,000 and a 10-year jail sentence.

Such a law, he declared, would make Communists "think twice before they decline to answer the question 'Are you now or have you ever been a member of the Communist Party?'"

Representative Thomas was one of six speakers to address 75 Legionnaires from over the country who are here to receive training in conducting similar seminars on a State level. The seminar program was initiated at the Legion's 1947 convention.

Laval Defied Nazi Demands To War on U. S., Memoirs Say

Paris, Nov. 18 (U.P.)—Pierre Laval, Vichy Premier of France during the German occupation, rejected two Nazi demands to declare war on the United States and Britain and rejected a military alliance offer by Adolf Hitler after the Allied invasion of North Africa in November, 1942, his memoirs assert.

The memoirs will be published here serially starting tomorrow.

Laval was sentenced to death by a French court October 9, 1945 and executed by a firing squad October 15, 1945, after trying to kill himself by swallowing poison.

Laval's memoirs conclude:

"When I examine my conscience, I find no echo of reproach. I am reproached with humiliating France. Why not rather recognize day she and Richard Durant, her all I have endured for her sake? Suppose the Germans had been the first to invent the atomic bomb and if they had won the war instead of losing it, with what then could I be reproached? Would I not then have been congratulated for having held out so long in the interest of France?"

"According to Leon Blum's formula, I would have been known as a man of foresight, whose judgment was proved right by events. I would be neither better nor worse but I would be treated as one who had the right to his country's gratitude."

"I prefer not to have been that man."

Sarasota, Fla., Nov. 18 (U.P.)—Mabel Ringling, 23, announced today she and Richard Durant, her circus elephant trainer boy friend, had broken their engagement. "We were both too hasty," she said.

An Assurance to the American Public

Sure yesterday... Sure today... Sure tomorrow

All through the long years of war, you could Say Seagram's and be Sure of Pre-War Quality. What was true then is just as true today, And you can be sure it will be just as true in all the days to come. Yes, through December 25th, and thereafter.

For during the period from October 25th for sixty days, in strict and voluntary compliance with the request of the President of the United States for grain conservation, all distilling operations in every Seagram plant have stopped.

Yet, we repeat, with all the uncompromising respect for high quality standards for which our name has so long been honored by public and trade alike, that... in the future... as always... you can Say Seagram's and be Sure of Pre-War Quality!

U. S. 'Can't Renege' On Selling Tankers

Senate Group Is Told Cabinet Backed
Sale of 96 Ships to Foreign Countries

Raymond S. McKeough, member of the Maritime Commission, said yesterday the government had made commitments for sales of 96 tankers to foreign countries and "cannot, in good conscience, back down."

McKeough told the Senate Small Business Committee the cabinet had asked the commission to handle the sales and he is "making no apologies for carrying out the obligations" of the Government.

The commission was replying to contentions of Committee Chairman Wherry (R., Neb.) that the tanker transfer is "illegal and unwise." Wherry takes the position that the tankers should be sold to American oil firms to help build up petroleum supplies on the East Coast.

The commission has thus far delivered 31 of the tankers abroad and 18 more are being processed for sale. Disposition of the remaining 47 has been held up pending a ruling by the Attorney General on legality of the sales.

Wherry said the committee's records show the Maritime Commission has on file 48 applications by American firms for 157 P-2 type tankers.

sexual behavior, and other types are not approved in that group." Dr. Kinsey said about 85 per cent of the grade school limit group have extra-marital sex experience, and only half that many in the college group, with high school around 75 per cent.

"In each group sexual habits have remained much the same for several generations. There is no scientific evidence that the world is becoming 'better' or 'worse' in regard to its sexual behavior."

"Tremendous differences are found in individuals. There are males who are involved in sexual activities several thousand times as frequently as other males."

Boyhood Habits Continue

"These differences are of very great social significance. They account for the ease or the difficulty with which sexual adjustments are worked out with a wife who is equally, or less, or more responsive sexually."

"There is evidence that the boys who begin sexual activity at earlier ages are the ones who are most likely to have the highest rates of activity, not only in boyhood but throughout the whole of their lives."

"Some types of behaviour which many people have considered rare or perverse in the human prove to be common and usual sorts of behavior in other animals. This study shows that such types of behavior are more common in the human animal than anyone has previously realized."

In cold figures, the book states that just under 40 per cent of men in their teens and just over 20 per cent aged 60 are unfaithful to their wives during marriage.

About 20 per cent of the youngest unmarried men practice homosexuality, at some time. "It is not correct," says Dr. Kinsey, to call them all homosexuals. And, by the age of 40 nearly 40 per cent of single males have practiced homosexuality, without necessarily becoming homosexuals."

In the upper educational classes, said Dr. Kinsey, masturbation was "more or less accepted" and was considered "against nature" in lower educational levels. Nudity was generally approved in these same upper levels of education and considered indecent by the people with less education. Among the latter, sexual premarital experience and promiscuity were looked on with more tolerance than in the higher levels.

McCloy Statement 16 Nations Eligible for Bank Loans

John J. McCloy, president of the World Bank, yesterday denied that his organization would refuse to lend money for long-term capital investments in the 16 "Marshall Plan" nations.

The bank has not "taken a stand" against this proposal, McCloy told a news conference. The idea for this type of lending had been forwarded in the report of the 18-man Harriman Committee. It suggested the International Bank might loan up to three billion dollars for heavy industrialization projects under the foreign-aid program.

The bank will consider any application consistent with its resources and policies, McCloy said, and would base its consideration on whether the requested loan was a "bankable risk."

McCloy also indicated that the bank might make some loans before Congress completed its action on the Marshall Plan. The organization, he said, is not "just marking time" while the American aid program is being framed.

Austin Praises Food Train

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—Warren R. Austin, permanent United States delegate to the United Nations, hailed the 270-car Friendship Train as an example of "peacemongering" today after the train completed its historic run across the United States.

Bearing gifts of food destined mainly for France and Italy, the train was welcomed at a celebration which included a parade up Broadway and a ceremony at city hall.

Thirty-three flag-draped cars of the train were placed on floats and taken for a symbolic "review" past the Statue of Liberty, a gift from France.

Starting 10 days ago in Los Angeles with 12 cars, the train grew until it was split into three sections and totaled 270 cars, counting about 33 carloads of food donated by New York. It was estimated it carried more than one million dollars worth of food.

Packing for shipment is to begin at once. It will be transported free by American Export Lines and United States Lines. With December 24 fixed as the arrival date for France and New Year's Day for Italy. A token shipment is being flown to France to arrive by Thanksgiving Day.

THIS is a great country. All Americans worthy of the name believe that. They have abiding faith that we will keep right on growing and will become even greater.

American steel companies believe that, too. They are backing their faith with cash. They are now pouring ONE BILLION DOLLARS into expansion of steelmaking capacity. Few industries anywhere have ever launched so gigantic a program of peacetime expansion.

A billion dollars is more than the entire steel industry earned during the four war years. It equals a third of the dollar-value of all the present steel plants. Translated into production, it means 2,500,000 additional tons of steel a year for the homes, cars, and appliances America needs.

ONE BILLION DOLLARS deposited to the account of America's future!

Americans for years to come will draw against that account—in the form of higher productivity, more comfort and prosperity.

The Gallup Poll

Voters Oppose Using Yanks in Palestine

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 18.—American voters strongly favor the United Nations plan for dividing Palestine into separate Arab and Jewish states. At the same time they almost unanimously oppose use of United States troops to enforce proposed boundary lines. Because England refuses to employ her troops for that purpose, it becomes important for top U. N. planners to know that if the American public has its way, the United States will likewise refuse.

Instead, voters feel, some sort of a volunteer army under U. N. banners should be sent to the Holy Land when England's forces withdraw next August.

These opinions were revealed in a Nation-wide survey of representative voters just completed by the Institute. To determine popular sentiment on partition, this question was asked:

The United Nations has recommended that Palestine be divided into two states—one for the Arabs and one for the Jews—and that 150,000 Jews be permitted now to enter the Jewish state. Do you favor or oppose this idea?

Favor plan 65%
Oppose plan 10%
No opinion 25%

Every section of the population gives substantial support to the proposal. Republicans and Democrats vote exactly the same. College trained voters are a little more inclined to favor the U. N. than are those with less education. On the vital issue of what kind of troops are to be used to enforce settlement only 3 out of 100 voters think this Nation should send any troops. The Institute asked this question:

If England pulls her troops out of Palestine and war breaks out between the Arabs and the Jews, do you think the United States should send troops to keep the peace or should this be done by a United Nations volunteer army?

U. S. troops 3%
U. N. army 65%
Neither 18%
No opinion 14%

Should war break out between Arabs and Jews, only a third of voters now say they would be sympathetic toward either side. The vote of those expressing sympathy with one side or the other is 2-to-1 in favor of the Jews. This is shown by the following question and table:

If war breaks out between the Arabs and the Jews in Palestine, which side would you sympathize with?

Jews 24%
Arabs 12%
Neither 38%
No opinion 26%

Whether a voter is pro-Jewish or pro-Arab only slightly influences his opposition to sending United States soldiers to enforce the peace. This is how those with expressed sympathies for one side or the other vote on that question:

U. S. Troops U. N. Troops U. N. or op.
Pro-Arab 3% 65% 27% 5%
Pro-Jewish 6 80 9 5

In view of official Arabian opposition to the partition plan, it is interesting to note that almost 6 out of 10 pro-Arab Americans favor the plan. The following table shows that correlation:

Favor U. N. Plan Oppose U. N. Plan
Pro-Arab 58% 26% 16%

Lane Seeks Advice On Plane Purchase

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 18 (AP)—David H. Wallace, executive secretary of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission, said today Governor Lane was seeking expert advice on the purchase of another enforcement plane for enforcing oyster fisheries laws. Wallace said the department had sought to purchase a Grumman Wildcat—an amphibious plane—but the Governor thought the price too high.

"It's merely a matter of learning early—at 3, 4 and 5 years—to cooperate with one another, to share things and have respect for other people's property," she said.

The "official" languages in the nursery—just as in the grownup United Nations—are English and French. Teachers read in both languages, but English predominates.

Canton, Ill., Nov. 18 (AP)—J. L. Swartzbaugh today had a loaded rifle ready in case a frisky deer decides to renew a battle the buck started Saturday on Swartzbaugh's farm near Canton.

Swartzbaugh said the buck leaped a fence and attacked a bull. Swartzbaugh sustained cuts and scratches in routing the buck.

'Dollar Diplomacy' Held Inept in China

Copyright, 1947, N. Y. Herald Tribune
Shanghai, Nov. 18.—Dollar diplomacy—the system under which American force is supposedly used to extort concessions for American business men in foreign countries—is apparently a myth so far as the American community here is concerned.

American business men in Shanghai note that the chief motives of American policy in China are political and military. They say these considerations overshadow others to a point where the commercial problems of Americans on the spot are disregarded or regarded only in an offhand way.

Americans here cite shortcomings in the Chinese government's postwar business rules and policies which could be changed with benefit to themselves and without hardship to China. They say that if America were really practicing alert dollar diplomacy, she would use her unquestioned hold over the Chinese government to correct these.

One example of this is the law which forbids foreign ships to carry freight in and out of China's inland river ports—notably the great port of Hankow, which before the war dominated the trade of central China. Hankow and other ports are kept closed in this way by an active Chinese shipping lobby which exploits the national prejudice against any sort of foreign interference in Chinese affairs. It is argued that foreign flags on China's rivers are an offense against Chinese sovereignty—despite the fact that foreign flags have sailed on the St. Lawrence, the Hudson, the Mississippi and many other rivers for generations without raising such questions.

The rule is a major factor in the present stifling of China's foreign trade. To abolish it would benefit both China and the American business man, yet there is no public indication that American diplomats have ever tried to do this.

We don't want deliberately to short-change the American people," he declared.

The action, he said, should not be construed as indicating opposition to the emergency aid program for France, Italy and Austria.

Farm organizations, grain dealers from Minneapolis, Omaha, Kansas City, Chicago and Sioux City, and major users of grain will be summoned by his group, Bridges added. Another Republican committee member, Senator Reed of Kansas, the greatest wheat-producing State, declared that it has become obvious that the present rate of wheat shipments abroad cannot be maintained after June 30. Present plans call for the export of 500 million bushels of wheat in the fiscal year ending June 30. Many grain experts in the Great Plains winter wheat belt predict that next year's crop, on present prospects, may fall from 300 to 400 bushels below this year's all-time record yield. If that develops, a vast curtailment of the use of wheat in this country would be necessary to meet even a largely reduced commitment for the next crop year.

On the House side, Representative August H. Andresen (R., Minn.) of the House Agriculture Committee, told the Foreign Affairs Committee that he challenged administration estimates that 500 million bushels of wheat and 70 million bushels of other grains can be exported by June 30.

Because of prospects for a reduced wheat harvest next year, Andresen said, this country should keep a carryover of 350 million bushels instead of the 163 million the Government is now planning. Andresen offered a three-point suggestion:

1. That since America is giving food to Europe we invite Russia, Canada, Australia and Argentina to participate in a "common charity pool."

2. That the people pray for rain to overcome drought conditions in Europe and in the American winter wheat belt.

3. That half the food sent to Europe under the stopgap relief program be distributed by the American Red Cross, the American Friends Service Organization and other religious and charitable groups.

Bridges declared his committee's study of the domestic program would not preclude appropriations for food purchases outside the United States. However, he said, the committee does not necessarily intend to limit its help for France, Italy and Austria to amounts that would not call for sacrifices by the American people.

He said the group also wants to look into possible substitutes for scarce grains, even if those substitutes were more expensive.

The weather bulletin added that although dry weather was threatening next year's wheat crop in the Great Plains area, rains and wet fields caused further delay of seeding in the South, notably in the Carolina-Georgia area, and some sowing will have to be delayed until spring in the State of Washington.

In nearby Virginia the Cooperative Crop Reporting Service reported farmers may be handicapped seriously in producing next year's wheat crop unless fields dry out quickly.

Only about two thirds of the intended wheat acreage has been sown, the service stated, because of continued rains.

They were among the most vocal of industrial critics of the 23-nation reciprocal trade treaties announced last night.

Dominicans Ask Cuba to Pay for Plot

Lo, Poor Indians!

4 Squatters Forced Out Of Pueblo

Taos, N. Mex., Nov. 18 (AP).—The Taos Indian pueblo's four "squatters" had moved away today, even the one who had been squatting for 10 years.

The governor of the Taos tribe and his council stood firm on their right to evict tenants of one of the oldest apartment houses in the United States.

The problem that had the ancient adobe pueblo in a turmoil for weeks was: "Does an Indian of a strange tribe have a right to a flat in the Taos pueblo simply because he marries a woman of the Taos tribe?"

He doesn't, if the governor and his council say so.

That ruling, backed by the United States Supreme Court, forced the four Indians, who moved in with the in-laws after their weddings, to move out.

A housing shortage started the ouster move.

Two Who Fled Coup in Siam Reported Held

Bangkok, Nov. 18 (AP).—Two fugitives from the military regime which seized power in Siam nine days ago were reported tonight in the protective custody of the navy.

The two were reported to be Pridi Phanomyong, elder statesman who led the pro-Allied underground movement Free Thai during the war, and his secretary, Vajirachit Siddhivijev.

These reports came as Premier Luang Aphaiwongse rapped the knuckles of a military spokesman who declared yesterday that seven suspects now in custody had named a retired navy lieutenant as the assassin of former King Amda Mahidol. Siddhivijev was named as an eighth suspect wanted by the military.

The spokesman had said also that an assassin was en route to Switzerland to kill Phumiphon Aduldet, who succeeded Amda Mahidol after the latter was found dead of a gunshot wound in the royal palace last June. (The king's secretary in Geneva said he knew nothing of an assassination threat.)

May Take Demand For Reparations To World Body

public, Nov. 18 (AP).—Cuba has been asked to pay reparations for "moral and material damages" to the Dominican Republic resulting from a recent abortive plot to invade this country, it was announced officially today.

A government spokesman said Cuba had been invited to settle the matter amicably through direct negotiations, failing which Dominican authorities would take the case before the proper international organizations.

The Dominican note to Cuba stated that Cuban officials not only had full knowledge of the expedition being prepared in that country to overthrow the Dominican government but that some of them actually participated in it.

Storm Perils Wrecked Crew On Island

Boston, Nov. 18 (AP).—Shipwrecked and "suffering" British sailors were spending their fourth night on a raw and rainswept island, which gave them refuge from wild seas but was not the safe haven they thought they'd reached last Saturday.

A radio operator pounded out infrequent and interrupted messages pleaded for help "in hours" for the 44 crewmen of the British steamer Langscreag, which broke in half after grounding on Sacred Island, about five miles off Cape Bauld, Newfoundland.

The United States Coast Guard cutter Evergreen was en route from Argentina, Newfoundland, but was not expected to reach the island until "some time Thursday."

Heavy weather grounded planes.

One man was lost when the steamer smashed on shore reefs Saturday. The survivors thought they had reached the Newfoundland coast where overland rescue was possible.

Two Wisconsin Killers Given Life Sentences

Madison, Wis., Nov. 18 (AP).—Four frantic days which began with an orgy of lust and murder ended today for two young former convicts with State's prison receiving them for life sentences.

Buford Sennett, 22, and Robert Winslow, 24, who gave up last night after a 12-hour siege in a backwoods barn, heard Superior Judge Roy Proctor say he wished he might order them hanged, as he pronounced life sentences on both. Wisconsin does not have capital punishment.

The two had pleaded guilty to charges of first degree murder in the hitch-hike slaying Friday night of Carl Carlson, 25-year-old father and University of Wisconsin medical student. They also admitted raping Carlson's sister-in-law but were not charged in this connection.

Carlson's body was recovered this morning at their direction.

Heating oil is in more demand today than ever before. We are doing everything possible to meet the need, but still the supply is not equal to the demand.

HERE'S WHAT YOU CAN DO!

You can help insure yourself and your family a warm, comfortable winter by economizing now on every drop of fuel oil. Keep your thermostat moderate (not over 70° F.) from now until spring. Turn it still lower

We will continue to do our part to produce and deliver every gallon of fuel oil possible, but a long, severe winter may bring about a serious fuel shortage. Even with a normal winter there may not always be enough. So save all the heating oil you can today and avoid a cold home later on. The health and comfort of your family may depend on it.

Gromyko Opposes Plan to Curb Veto

Warns Russia Will Shun U. N. Decisions Which Tamper With Her Present Rights

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Nov. 18.—United States, France or China had made a choice. It was reliably reported the United States also opposed him as being too weak for the onerous duties of governor.

Lake Success, N. Y., Nov. 18.—American proposals to curb Soviet abuse of the veto ran head-on today into Russian warnings she would have nothing to do with United Nations decisions which tamper with her present rights.

The American resolution brought before the Assembly's political committee by John Foster Dulles, asked that the "Little Assembly" study revision of the big power veto in the Security Council. It seeks to eliminate use of the one-vote blackball in applications for membership and in pacific settlement of disputes. Russia has used the veto 22 times.

Andrei Gromyko declared Russia would veto any action next year on the proposal. The fourth Soviet boycott against four proposals made by Secretary of State Marshall September 17 was thus predicted. These include establishment of the interim assembly, the Balkan Commission for Greece and the Korean Commission.

Russia Won't Tolerate It

Russia, Gromyko declared, "cannot tolerate a situation according to which a great power or a group of powers would dictate its will upon the Soviet Union, even if this will were dictated by means of a majority vote which might have been formed through pressure exerted."

Only Egypt joined the Soviet bloc in trying to prevent adoption of the proposal. Others of the 32 nations which announced their views today supported the American resolution.

Dulles agreed that the five big powers should have the right to protect their national interests where they might become involved in war. However, present use of the veto power for all matters coming before the Security Council has led to "frustration and recrimination" with loss of esteem for the entire United Nations, he said.

Stand on Trieste Reversed

Ales Bebler of Yugoslavia charged that the veto was being used by Britain to prevent appointment of Auguste Buisseret of Belgium as Governor of Trieste. The charge revealed the Soviets have completely reversed their opposition to a civil government for the Trieste area, expressed earlier this year. The United States had then insisted upon its appointment.

The situation is now completely reversed. The United States is willing to permit the 5000 American and 5000 British troops in that area remain in control. Delegates considered the Yugoslav statement as an admission the troops had been effective.

Although the Soviets agreed to Buisseret, Britain opposed him without any use of the veto and the matter was dropped before the

THE MARSHALL PLAN
Narrative by the Foreign Policy Association
Commentary by Members of The Washington Post Staff

We Want the Public to Know the Facts

In 1946 a provision of the Naval Appropriation Bill forbids the civilian employees of the Navy to strike. This was reaffirmed in 1947 by the Taft-Hartley Bill. We have no quarrel with either of these provisions of Acts of Congress, we never wanted to strike anyway, but in all justice it would appear that in depriving the Government employee the right to use the principal weapon with which he might fight, the Congress accepted an obligation to protect him from the causes which usually lead to strikes. We cannot believe that the Congress took away the weapon in order to take advantage of its employees.

On Oct. 31 the Navy Department announced the long awaited wage adjustments for the per diem employees of the Metropolitan Washington Area. The amount of the increase for the basic trades varies from 1 to 7 cents per hour. At about the same time there were other increases announced for other areas which ran from 17 to 19 cents per hour. Workmen as near as Philadelphia get this higher rate.

For years it has been the boast of the Navy that the best in naval ordnance was produced in Washington and vicinity and the experimental and research work done in the laboratories in and near the District has resulted in the development and protection of many new weapons which are considered by those who used them, second to none. The type of workmen employed in these naval establishments compare favorably with any workmen, anywhere. The Navy's mechanics in this area are insulted by the fact that their skill is not recognized, that after producing and developing the sinews of war, which were tested and proved on the scene of battle, their "know how" is so unappreciated as to result in a wage offered that is less than that offered for common labor in the building trades.

Why the discrimination?

Since the beginning of the war the wages in all naval yards and stations have been stabilized. What was considered a just wage in the West was considered a just wage in the East. Statements emanating from the White House have implied that the wage stabilization policy is still in force. In order to justify the meager increase the Navy Department went back to an antiquated law which was passed in 1862. This law has failed to keep pace with modern trends in labor relations, it entirely fails to recognize the principle of the employee having any say in the decisions affecting the adjustment of his wages. All of the personnel who acted in any capacity in taking the survey or in calculating the results were people whom the Navy states are part of management. The employees organizations were told that "it is the responsibility of management to collect the necessary wage data for any survey."

In any other industry such discrimination would probably have resulted in a strike. We can only protest, let the facts be known, and depend on public opinion to help us. Business men in Washington surely realize that their business opportunities depend to a great degree upon a standard buying power among their present and potential customers. Working people must realize that the existence of a group receiving sub standard wages in their crafts is to promote a form of competition that will threaten their own livelihood. We all must realize that the cost of living, of rearing or maintaining a family according to the American standard, is just as high, or higher here than elsewhere.

We appeal to the residents of Metropolitan Washington, to the suburbanites in Maryland and Virginia, to the visitors in the District at this time, and to the members of the Senate and House of Representatives who are assembled here for the special session to lift their voices with us in protest against this evident discrimination.

IN AUGUST, anniversary month of the destruction of Hiroshima, The Washington Post published a special Atomic Supplement, 12 full pages devoted exclusively to the exposition of the problems of the new atomic age.

On November 23 The Washington Post will again devote an entire section—this time 16 tabloid pages—to a single subject: The Marshall Plan.

Why? Because this is the dominantly important issue facing us today. Because, as General Marshall said, "An essential part of any successful action on the part of the United States is an understanding on the part of the people of America of the character of the problem and the remedies to be applied." Because that understanding does not now exist—Gallup shows that 4 out of 10 never heard of the plan and only 1 out of 10 can properly define it. And finally because Congress has just convened in a special session to consider this subject.

The expert staff of the Foreign Policy Association will provide the authoritative running story of The Washington Post's special Marshall Plan section. Specific commentary is added by staff writers of The Washington Post, based on their first-hand knowledge of events in the Nation's Capital, at United Nations headquarters, and in Europe:

Editor Herbert Elliston will give the editorial appraisal. Pulitzer Prize Winner Edward Folliard will write on the origins of the plan. Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr., will discuss why 14 billion wasn't enough. Eugene Meyer will examine Europe as a financial risk. John Ball will write on our agricultural resources, Robert Albright on the legislative situation, Kuhn and Alfred Friendly on administration of the plan, and J. A. Livingston on America in the world economy. There will be photographs of the individuals involved and a panel of Herblock's cartoons on the subject.

The Washington Post urges you to get and read this section. It is extremely important that every American citizen have a thorough knowledge of the Marshall Plan and what it involves.

Minister Named To Rule Slovakia

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 18 (AP).—Czechoslovakia's grave political crisis was solved tonight when the National Front coalition parties named a new ministerial board to govern Slovakia.

The Communists lost their bid to force pro-Communist trade union and partisan representation on the board. But they got the chairmanship and some opposition circles said "every compromise is a victory for them."

Police in Bratislava, capital of Slovakia, announced that 206 persons had been arrested in an alleged "foreign-directed conspiracy" to revive a separatist state. A Bratislava spokesman said that those under arrest there included 10 priests, 5 nuns and 105 civil servants.

Flying Automobile Cracks Up on Test

San Diego, Calif., Nov. 18 (AP). The new Convair flying automobile crashed and was wrecked on a test hop today but its two occupants escaped serious injuries. It ran out of gas.

Witnesses said the plane was apparently coming in for a landing when it crashed at the foot of D st. in suburban Chula Vista. The pilot, Reuben P. Snodgrass, was unhurt, and a companion, Lawrence Phillips of the Convair flight research department, escaped with minor injuries.

The plane, which was first tested only a few days ago, had an automobile body with detachable wings.

Last May another Constellation on a training flight out of the same base crashed into Delaware Bay, killing four TWA personnel.

Little more than a year ago, Constellations were grounded for six weeks by the CAA after a crash at Reading, Pa., in which five persons died.

Elderly Jobless Cases Reported on Increase

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 18 (AP).—Catherine Shipley, executive secretary of the Washington County Welfare Board, reported today that elderly persons are finding it harder to obtain employment, while it is becoming increasingly difficult for young wage earners to support dependent parents.

Food Saving Asked On Thanksgiving

Program Calls for Abundant, Economical
Menu, Purchase of CARE Packages

The consumer service section of the President's Citizens Food Committee yesterday endorsed the planning of inexpensive Thanksgiving Day dinners as a means of saving food and cash for hungry families overseas.

The program, which was originated here by the Washington Ethical Society, calls for the serving of abundant, economical foods on Thanksgiving and placing the savings into the purchase of CARE packages for shipment abroad.

The consumer service section, headed by Miss Katharine Fisher, head of the Good Housekeeping Institute, has approved a menu of grapefruit juice and cider cocktail, roast chicken and stuffing with mashed potatoes and giblet gravy, cabbage and apple salad, pumpkin pie and coffee for the traditional holiday meal.

Turkey has been recommended for the "We Care" meals only if the family group is sufficiently large to purchase a complete turkey. The program recommends servings of a half-pound per person, rather than the usual 3/4 to 1 pound per person. If half or quarter birds are available, they can be used economically by small family groups.

In the District, several organizations have already endorsed the program and others have circulated information to their members. Among these are the Washington Federation of Churches, the Jewish Community Council, the Washington Hebrew Congregation, the Federation of Citizens Associations, the District Voteless League of Women Voters, Americans for Democratic Action, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Civitan Club and officials of Washington schools.

Catholic archdiocese has declared sympathetic interest and plans adoption of a similar program, Dr. George E. Beauchamp, leader of the sponsoring society, said.

Dr. Beauchamp, in announcing the national approval of the local program, said, "In the midst of a world in want, it is unthinkable that Americans should sit down this year to the traditional Thanksgiving feast."

Dr. Beauchamp said the Thanksgiving Day dinner cash savings could be sent into foreign relief by purchasing packages through CARE, Inc., 1346 Connecticut ave. n.w., the Washington Ethical Society Relief Committee, 4215 Leland st., Chevy Chase, or through any other relief organization.

Action Sought On District Health Report

Steps to revive interest in a report published 18 months ago describing District health and hospital facilities as "appalling" and "disgraceful" were taken here yesterday.

Dr. Paul B. Cornely, chairman of a committee representing 30 civic organizations seeking "long overdue action" on the findings of the Washington Metropolitan Health Council's critical survey, asked the council's executive committee for a joint meeting to plan a one-day, city-wide health conference of all local civic groups.

Spokesmen of the 30 organizations, meeting Monday night at Howard University, agreed that District citizens were either not aware of the survey, or had forgotten about it since its release, Dr. Cornely said yesterday. Dr. Cornely is public health professor at Howard University.

Dr. Ross T. McIntyre, chairman of the council's executive committee, said after yesterday's meeting that "every consideration" will be given to Dr. Cornely's request for a joint session.

Members of Dr. Cornely's committee representing the civic groups are Miss Elizabeth Carpenter of the Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations, Clarence W. Davis of the YMCA, Dr. Ida Fox of the Committee for Racial Democracy, Jesse A. Keene of the Federation of Civic Associations, and Dr. Anna Rand of the Physicians' Forum.

Dr. Cornely, who said that "talk has been frequent enough" in the past 15 years, added that little has been done to remedy the acknowledged faults.

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 quarts a day. If the 16 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's gives happy relief and will help the 16 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

New Housing Squeeze

Washington's critical housing shortage during the war years was relieved in considerable measure by the construction of temporary dwellings. When the war emergency was brought to an end by law last July, so far as temporary housing is concerned, it became necessary to plan for the disposal of this housing. The National Capital Housing Authority has outlined such a plan, and we think the community ought to study its implications carefully.

The NCHA has 5515 war housing units under its management. But the most favorable schedule that the NCHA has been able to devise calls for disposal of 1170 of these by next June, 912 by June, 1949, and 1504 by June, 1950. Some of these "demountables" and "demolishables" are on leased land that must be cleared. Some are on public land needed for other purposes. About 600 permanent units are being transferred to the Navy. The NCHA sees hope of retaining only 1078 war housing units, about half of them permanent dwellings, and the remainder temporary structures that can be used for the present to ease the housing shortage. In any event, more than 3500 units will have to be disposed of, and these will probably be removed from the District because of noncompliance with local building, zoning and fire regulations. This means a sharp diminution of the supply of housing in the low-rental bracket where the shortage is most acute.

"It was obvious from the beginning," says John Ihlder, executive officer of the NCHA, "that removal of public war housing would impose great hardship upon its low-income occupants. The National Capital Housing Authority, therefore, has urged repeatedly that construction of temporary war housing be matched by a program for the construction of permanent low-rental housing into which the low-income occupants of the temporaries could move. This program has not yet been started. Consequently we are facing a situation in which thousands of low-income families will be evicted and so added to the thousands who are now on the Authority's waiting list... The situation is desperate, and the disposition of the public war housing will make it more desperate."

There is no point in saying now that more of the wartime housing should have been of a permanent character. The Nation was in a hurry to build any kind of shelter for war workers. The fact does, however, emphasize the necessity of providing more low-rental housing of a permanent character now that the war is over. This obligation falling directly on the shoulders of Congress can be neglected only at the cost of wholesale evictions and consequent hardships and suffering that will fall with special impact on the families of low-income veterans.

Stronger Voice

Almost without exception, members of Congress who toured Europe this summer have come back convinced of the necessity for expanding our international information program. As Senator H. Alexander Smith, chairman of the Senate group investigating the program in operation, said in a radio broadcast last week: "We found in every country we visited that we are losing this war of words. Our own Voice of America is pitifully weak compared not only with the efforts of Russia and her Communist satellites but also with the efforts in the same field that are being made by friendly countries such as Great Britain and France."

In other words, if we are to overcome the deadly effect which endless repetition of slander and lies by the Moscow propagandists is bound to have, we must strengthen our facilities for making the truth known and strengthen them immediately with all the tools at our command. We hope that in light of these reports Senator Taft and others who have opposed a broadened information program will be persuaded to change their minds. Three steps are essential, in our view, to make American efforts more effective. The first is a deficiency appropriation to restore the cuts which limited the program for this fiscal year to 12 million dollars. The second is to pass the Mundt Bill, which will place our information activities on a permanent, business-like basis. In this context we need to expand not only our radio broadcasts, but also our libraries abroad, our daily overseas press bulletins, and our student exchange program. The third step is for the Administration to appoint a man to direct our information program who is both an evangelist and an administrator who can command the confidence of Congress.

There is one danger which we hope Congress will avoid in augmenting the Voice of America. In their zeal to meet the attacks the Communists are making on us, some members may be tempted to insist that we fight fire with fire. Nothing could do our cause more harm than to have our information program perverted into a mere anti-Communist crusade or a vehicle devoted solely to extolling our virtues as benefactors. Either of these courses would convince the people for whose minds we are contending that we too were merely engaged in propaganda. What our information program needs is facts, not invective or self-adulation. The objective truth can be just as devastating as Moscow's name-calling, and far more effective.

Security Resignations

The great State Department security crisis has at last ended as it should have begun. And the pity is that the department had to be shamed into doing what elementary considerations of fair play made imperative from the beginning. For shaming the department—in the circumstances a distinguished public service—great credit is due the law firm of Arnold, Fortas and Porter, which acted without fee as counsel and advocate for most of the men dismissed as security risks. An important contribution to this shame was made by Bert Andrews of the New York Herald Tribune, who gave publicity to the case history of one of the dismissed employees.

The essential point involved was stated succinctly by Judge Arnold: "It is a dangerous principle to allow a great Government department to brand a man as disloyal to his country and refuse to let him defend himself against charges at the time they are made. If the State Department wants to get rid of people it does not like, that purpose can be accomplished by requesting their resignations." We think, as we have said many times before, that this is indisputable. Indeed, we go a step beyond it and assert that it is a dangerous principle to brand a man as disloyal to his country without affording him a chance to refute whatever charges may be made against him by confronting his accusers. Suspected individuals who cannot be convicted in ways consistent with our traditions of justice should be permitted to resign.

It is well that the State Department has made a clean breast of its shame and promised to deal more decently with its suspect employees in the future. Less than this would certainly have left the department altogether bankrupt in morale. One wonders what could have led men like Secretary Marshall and Undersecretary Lovett to attempt the defense of so indefensible a procedure as that which their subordinates pursued at the outset. For our own part, we cannot escape the suspicion—since suspicion is the order of the day—that they were the victims of ruthless blackmail from appropriators rulers on Capitol Hill. If this be the case, the subversion of American principles is far worse than anything the department's 10 could have contemplated.

Facing Both Ways

The inconsistencies with which Senator Taft charges the President could be much more effectively charged against the Ohioan. He assails Mr. Truman's proposal to reestablish price controls on a few vital commodities as an effort to resurrect OPA. It is, of course, no such thing. In another place, Senator Taft, as if backing some controls, charges "the President's own Decontrol Board" with having decontrolled dairy products and grains in 1946. The truth is that the three-man Decontrol Board was provided for by Congress after President Truman had vetoed a Taft-emasculated version of OPA. At the time we described the three men as the "three pallbearers of price control," for they were bound to bury specific controls according to rigid formulas established by Congress. Congress, in other words, was the culprit, not the President. Senator Taft is trying to have it both ways, now that it is perfectly apparent to every housewife that decontrol was premature. Senator Taft and his fellow Republicans have many assurances of price stability to eat which they gave the public after they killed price controls. The facts, unlike history, cannot be distorted.

Mr. Taft acknowledged the need for interim aid, even for a Marshall Plan, though in "modified" form. But he lumps them all together with past aid under the head of "generous contributions." He knows full well that the Marshall Plan for economic recovery in Europe is a plan of action aimed at enabling Europe to stand on its feet instead of collapsing on its knees before the Muscovite menace. Elsewhere in Mr. Taft's speech he acknowledges the existence of a policy back of the aid. But he does so only by way of berating Secretary Marshall for not adding to the bill—that is to say, for not including China among the countries to be saved from communism. Neither in the interest of the American taxpayer nor in that of American policy can the Ohioan justify his plea for China. Where Senator Taft got his estimate that the cost of "saving" China would be "very reasonable" only the Senator can tell. Nobody knows what the cost would be, but even a schoolboy would realize that, in aiding the corrupt and feeble regime in Nanking to conquer the Communist hordes who are now waging a civil war covering a subcontinent, the cost would have to be measured in billions of dollars, not to mention an American army. Anything short of that would infallibly go down the drain. Moreover, political warfare no less than physical warfare requires some attention to strategy. We cannot spread ourselves all over the map, but must concentrate on the position which is at once manageable and in immediate danger, and one, furthermore, where no American soldiers are required—viz, western Europe. On Germany as on China the Ohioan is equally off the beam. He voices the criticisms of those persons who, going to the other extreme of Morgenthauism, are protesting against the dismantlement of the militarily inflated heavy industry in western Germany. The steel plants in western Germany are now producing at the rate of 3½ million tons; under the revised level-of-industry plan they can go up to 10½ million tons. With that leeway there is plenty of room for development of Germany not as a self-sufficient nation but as an important constituent of the integrated "working economy" of Europe that is the objective of the Marshall Plan. To lift Germany beyond this level would be to invite a revival of militarism in Germany.

In other respects the Senator made some shrewd thrusts at the Administration. It was apparent at the time that the President laid himself open to a jibe for the boner he perpetrated last month that price control and rationing are essentially police state methods. They are, of course, no more police state methods than taxation or traffic regulations, if passed by our duly elected representatives. Moreover, we have often wondered in print why our existing export controls have not been more rigorously applied as a weapon against both inflation and waste. In this regard, Senator Taft's criticism was on sound ground. But what struck us most about his speech was the barrenness as well as the inconsistency of his alternative proposal for stabilizing prices. All he could think of that isn't being either done or contemplated to hold prices was a proposal to reduce taxation, or pour money into the spending stream. His remedy, in other words, is to apply the classical method for arresting deflation, not inflation! The speech had a power and effectiveness on the air, but, reading it, we had a feeling that on foreign policy and on domestic policy the Senator is trying to face both ways.

Polygamy

Just as the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women is starting an oblique attack on polygamy and concubinage throughout the world, an American woman industrialist, Miss Vivien Kellems, has seemingly given this ancient social system a verbal shot in the arm. Miss Kellems, widely known for speaking her mind, let the chips fall where they may, has proposed that society either give women job equality with men or legalize polygamy. Since there aren't enough husbands to go around, she points out, women on their own should have fairer opportunities to earn their livings. If men won't grant this, she holds, then they should marry more women—in droves if necessary—and support them.

But before any existing harem heads, or other men who secretly aspire to such roles, take too much satisfaction from this, or solemn monogamists become too alarmed, they should be warned of Miss Kellems' habitual shock method of statement. Alarmed that a "rash of restrictive laws" might break out against women wage earners in another depression, she is trying to frighten legislators into giving women more legal protection in jobs. For she well realizes that those who most loudly maintain, when jobs are scarce, that women—at least those in well paying jobs—should be forced back to the home are usually the last ones willing to support jobless aunts, nieces, cousins and sisters-in-law, let alone additional wives.

Those women seeking action at the next regular session of Congress on the equal pay for equal work bill no doubt are welcoming the discussion and even the shocked outcry that Miss Kellems' proposal has provoked. They maintain that the greatest inequality that the wage-earning woman meets is the general tendency to pay women less than men for comparable work. Arguments against this have been based chiefly on women being unstable workers, and (as recently in England) on the fear that the encouragement of women in industry will make them forsake the home. But now Miss Kellems warns how really costly to men it would be if women, instead of forsaking the home, went back to work en masse.

Taxes For Aid

President Truman's unqualified indorsement of the policy of financing the Marshall Plan out of current taxes is a challenge to advocates of tax reduction. For this method of financing European aid outlays might absorb most if not all the budgetary surpluses available as an offset to revenue lost by lowering taxes. But the alternative—financing of foreign aid by borrowing from the public—would unquestionably aggravate the inflationary forces now at work to raise living costs.

The argument against resort to borrowing is summed up succinctly and authoritatively in the Harriman report which says bluntly that such proposals do not stand up under analysis, because "the Government is already borrowing from the public through savings banks and various other issues adapted to different types of buyers about all that the public can buy." Hence "additional borrowing would almost inevitably mean a further increase in bank credit which is inflationary." The conclusion is plain: control of inflation requires that funds for foreign aid "must be provided within a balanced budget."

IN A GREEN WORLD

I am the sapless, the sere and the disregarded,
I am the last year's leaf on a spring-green tree;
Frosts I have known, and the ice lay heavy upon me,
Slowly I faded, with none to regard or see.
I am the lonely, the friendless, the unimportant,
I am the useless, here on a warm-veined bough,
I have seen crimson of Autumn, that flaunted its splendor,
I have been once a flame, but am ashen now.
I am the weary, the lost in a world of beauty,
I am the outcast shamed by the bloom of May;
Why must I cling to a tree that has other uses
Than bearing a burden that should have been blown away?

Letters To The Editor

Illustrating Our Story

Our Government's foreign information program could be strengthened greatly by extensive use of sketch strips and panels. Our story could be told in a more entertaining and compelling manner through dramatic use of graphic material.

The radio is excellent, but it cannot stand alone. We should consider it merely the first page of our effort. Sketch strips and other forms of graphic material, if professionally produced, would reach beyond boundaries, would penetrate iron curtains. Audiences would seem to spring up from nowhere, and would multiply. That was the case in our restricted efforts with "comic books" in various lands during the war. Government agencies for imparting information abroad have been hesitant to exploit the possibilities of sketch strips perhaps because of fear there would be criticism at home. But to supply information in the form that the multitudes can grasp in the twinkling of an eye neither demeans our aims nor colors the truth. Indeed, we clarify our position and strengthen our cause in a medium that delights the "reader." Brief underlines in the languages of the various countries could be more effective, in long-range efforts, than volumes of print or hours of radio talk.

How should these sketch-stories appear? (1) In newspapers that already are friendly; (2) in sketch books similar to our comic books; (3) in give-aways that can drift wherever man goes and (4) in posters that have striking appeal. They could be produced in New York and shipped to distributing centers abroad. For newspaper use plastics are advisable despite higher costs than matrices, for a plastic requires no metal at the newspaper end and can be used readily on the flatbed presses which prevail in smaller communities.

Another medium in which the United States has excelled seemingly has been dropped by the Government in its efforts to maintain its radio information program under a sharply reduced budget, to wit: illustrated feature stories in mats and plastics. Our great newspaper syndicates laid their foundations years ago with this type of material. Our newspapers and magazines today are unequalled in this kind of feature. The Government should resume production of this medium.

Ideas, if they are honest and simply presented, can sweep the world if told in dramatic graphic art.

Friendship Parcels

I read every word printed in The Washington Post about progress of the Friendship Train. It proves beyond question the desire of the American people to give tangible aid to Europe. For those of us who cannot hook a carload of wheat or sugar onto the Friendship Train there is still the individual food parcel sent directly to a friend, or to a name furnished by one of the many religious or educational organizations aiding in European relief.

Recently a group of my friends solved the problem of how to celebrate an anniversary in a way to give me deep satisfaction. They planned, packed and shipped food parcels to friends in Italy and England to whom I was unable to send at the moment. To me they sent a card listing the contents. Others hearing of the idea are following the plan in their Christmas giving in place of the tedious shopping for something "different" for family and friends here who already "have everything." This seems no year to surfeit the surfeited.
If parcels mailed now do not reach their European destination by Christmas, let us remember they may be even more welcome in January. No matter when a food parcel arrives, there will be rejoicing and sharing. Commenting on the items in one package, a British friend wrote: "That big tin of

Vishinsky On The Press

Of vital importance is the statement recently made in New York by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky to five United Nations correspondents: "Mr. Vishinsky was asked this question: 'Now that the General Assembly is drawing to a close, what, in your opinion, can be done through the media of public expression in the United States and the Soviet Union to improve Russian-American relations?'"

His reply was as follows: "A great deal can be done... For example, differences in the U. N. . . how can these be approached? . . . We can try to deepen these differences or we can try to explain them objectively and impartially. . . To provide object information on facts is the primary task of the press."

"There should be no sensationalism. . . The Soviet never goes in for sensational stories. . . The press can better relations, particularly within the U. N., if it is truthful and impartial. . . In following closely the newspaper reports of the U. N. Assembly, an alert observer often notices that some newspapers consistently emphasize the disagreements and minimize the agreements."

Could it not be helpful to the establishing of an enduring peace if every editor and individual minimized the insignificant disagreements and emphasized the significant agreements?

Gifts To Romania

Clothing and many other necessities are urgently needed in Europe. We have relatives in Romania. Yet when we send them used clothes as gifts, the government of that nation places hindrance in the way. It leaves taxes and other fees upon these gifts which are so burdensome to the recipients that many, we understand, cannot afford to redeem them from the postoffices, and great piles of packages lie there unclaimed.
But even if one assumes that some people in Romania are able to redeem these gifts, by what deviousness can the Romania government justify the merciless rebuff of succor thus tendered to its inhabitants?

Pinched Waists

As a little variation in the hemline topic, will you please get some reputable physician to say what the medical profession thinks of the pinched waist corset before the health of womanhood is ruined by the manufacturers of such? Years ago, during a similar fad, many young women suffered ill health and underwent painful operations because of wearing the pinched-in waist. No man will ever endanger his comfort or health with such a style—but our experienced girls of today may do so. Opposition will be useless if the manufacturers get going—and all of us do want to wear healthful girdles and corsets. Please do something before it is too late. E. M. MACK.

FBI Interviews

If it happened to a friend of mine, it could happen to me, especially now. She was stealthily interviewed by an FBI man about a neighbor of hers in Fairlington. Was this man who lived next to her, a Government employee, ever heard to make any slightest remark about the Government? Had she ever heard him say anything the least bit un-American in nature? What about his character? Then my friend was cautioned by the FBI agent not to mention to the neighbor that he had been there. He said he would not reveal the source of any of his information.

That's just dandy. Now what I want to know, so that I may be forewarned with bricksbats, is how much weight my own housewife, unworn evidence will have if I get interviewed by an FBI man about a neighbor of mine? Would you suggest to me the widest limits of a definition of un-American, so that I can try to sound intelligent about such matters if I have a chance to pass judgment on someone?

It might be good for some of my neighbors' husbands to lose their jobs—teach them a good lesson. I'm talking about the woman who didn't invite me to her bridge party, and the one whose little boys soaped my screens and stole my garbage can, and the one who lets her dog commit a nuisance on my lawn. Maybe I can get even now.

Potomac Park Housing

Sunday's papers carried a story that 100 civilian Government workers were forced to move from two of the residence halls (Alcott and Barton) in West Potomac Park to make way for the planting of botanical gardens.

With more and more Government agencies moving back into the Washington area from their wartime locations in other cities and with the wanted-to-rent columns in the daily papers filled to overflowing, it would seem that these particular low-cost housing units might well be retained for their original purpose rather than torn down to be eventually replaced by rose gardens or something equally impractical.

These West Potomac Park housing units are conveniently located for personnel working at Veterans' Administration, Navy Department and Interior. They might be just as convenient as quarters for G. I. students attending George Washington University. They are served by buses which run every 15 minutes, so that transportation is adequate. If taken over by a powerful veterans' organization, they could be converted into apartments, as has been done with the same type of housing at Arlington Farms.

Perhaps this impending disposal of necessary housing hasn't come to the attention of people who are sufficiently interested to do something about it. If this housing is needed and wanted, there must be some group in Washington powerful enough to take over where the Public Buildings Administration seems to have failed. For my part, I would prefer a roof over my head to roses under my feet.

British Emigrants

America for years has been a haven of refuge for the oppressed, tired, weary masses of all nationalities. But what of us, the British, who have and are still enduring hardships in the name of democracy?
I have yet to read of a scheme where the average Briton can be assisted to settle in the United States. True there is no bar if one has the necessary finances, but I am talking of folk like myself—a humble worker.

New Dream Of Science

By Malvina Lindsay

Curing "Cussedness"

THERE SEEMS a chance that the wonders of the future will include not only beavies of flying humans with aluminum wings but also political candidates who submit to voters their lie-detector records and their aptitude tests for leadership.

Even the conservative National Academy of Sciences, meeting in Washington this week, finds the problem of what to do about human nature bobbing up in its orthodox natural science discussions. One member, Dr. Roger J. Williams, distinguished biochemist, has submitted a resolution urging the President of the United States to call a conference to consider setting up a national research project for a better understanding of human beings.

Dr. Williams is one of a growing number of physical scientists who, like Dr. Albert Einstein and the releasers of atomic energy, have become alarmed because man personally is in the oxcart stage while his airplanes soar into the stratosphere, because while still an emotional infant, he finds the atom bomb in his nursery.

HAVING HELPED man's physical development by discovery of penicillin, the valuable B vitamin, Doctor Williams, director of the Biochemical Institute of the University of Texas, would now have physical and social scientists band together to help man improve his behavior. He is calling for a new science of "humanities" to explore human beings physically and mentally and help them control themselves as well as their machines.

In his recent book, The Human Frontier, Doctor Williams shows how closely the physical, mental and emotional sides of man are related. He believes human beings are too complex to be studied adequately by one type of scientist. Scientific selection of scientists should coordinate their efforts for a long range attack on what has been lazily regarded as the "cussedness" of human nature. While religion, art, music, literature would continue to inspire man to improve himself, science would supply the practical techniques. Supposing this could be done, what might we expect in the future? Not a Utopia of perfect government. Not a robot-run paradise of physical ease. But we might look forward to some of the following developments:

A CHANCE for every youngster and adult to find out what he is most likely to do well in life and be most happy doing.

Scientific selection and handling of employees, resulting in efficient use of human material, fewer frustrated people in the wrong jobs, fewer accidents, less illness, less friction.

Better relations between management and labor, based on deeper understanding of each other as human beings. Better industrial morale, fewer strikes.

More preschool education, resulting in training of children in civilized attitudes at the time when such training really counts.

More emphasis on the importance of the teacher. Selection of teachers of highest ability and character to train future citizens.

An end to rearing children by instinct or guesswork. More informed and trained parents. More young people prepared to build happy marriages and successful homes.

More leaders, as officeholders, diplomats, industrial heads, chosen for their special aptitudes, ability and training in fields in which they are attempting to lead.

Popular realization that jealousy and hatred can have as dangerous physiological as social effects.

National use of psychologists in the building of peace—specifically, an extension of their wartime services in selecting and training armistice leaders, especially diplomats.

More just and tolerant public opinion, based on knowledge that all racial and ethnic groups have their superiorities and their weaknesses. More neighborliness, based not merely on pious expressions of brotherhood, but also on knowledge of techniques of human adjustment.

Eventually—perhaps—an end to master race fables and to national chest thumping.

More popular understanding of the distinctive characteristics of the peoples of the world who are our potential enemies or friends.

An idealistic dream, all this? Yet there are men alive today who laughed at the Kitty Hawk experiment.

More Buses

It is refreshing to see that at last the Public Utilities Commission recognizes the futility of attempting longer to perpetuate the existing obsolete means of transportation by streetcars.

It would have been the height of folly to compel the Capital Transit Co. to rebuild the Benning streetcar line and refuse to allow the substitution of buses, which are a faster and more economical means of transportation. Why there are not more streetcar lines gradually discontinued and why more new streetcars instead of more new buses are being purchased is beyond my power to comprehend.

The thousands of dollars which are wasted each year by digging up the streets in order to repair or replace the tracks could be used for the procurement of modern buses. If streetcar lines were gradually abandoned and replaced by buses, one of the main causes of traffic congestion would thus be eliminated.

Palestine Compromise By Sumner Welles

Faith In U. N. Redeemed

WHEN THE achievements of the present session of the United Nations Assembly are finally appraised, it will be realized that the most far-reaching was the solution of the Palestine problem. For this represents the first practical demonstration of the capacity of the Assembly to solve a highly dangerous controversy. It shows as well that the United States and the Soviet Union can cooperate in making the United Nations work.

The American delegation has too often created the impression at Lake Success that it was as unyielding upon nonessentials as upon essentials. In the case of Palestine, fortunately, it has given proof to the contrary. Much credit for the final result should be given to Mr. Herschel Johnson for his broad-gauged handling of the negotiations. Special recognition should also be accorded Mr. Lester Pearson, the Canadian delegate, for the skill and persistence with which he pressed for the compromise finally reached. He has rendered a further outstanding contribution to the cause of world order.

FROM THE perfectionist standpoint the compromise solution now being shaped for final submission to the Assembly is far from ideal. It has been gravely prejudiced by the attitude of Great Britain. Primarily because of Mr. Bevin's narrow bias and blind obstinacy the British government is refusing its cooperation in the implementation of a solution adopted after protracted study by the Assembly, when such a solution would permit an early British evacuation of Palestine, and when the only alternative would be anarchy in the eastern Mediterranean.

The damage resulting from the decision of the British cabinet is not irreparable. But it does mean that the Assembly must act with speed and vigor if the damage done is to be repaired before the end of this session, so that the Palestine solution can be carried out without delay after the Assembly adjourns.

The Palestine committee was well advised in curtailing the transition period by providing that the two new states should obtain their independence before July 1 next. It was equally wise in adopting the suggestion of the Guatemalan delegate that the execution of the Assembly's decisions should be entrusted to a small committee composed exclusively of representatives of those lesser powers that favor partition.

WHILE IT IS proper that this committee should function within the scope of detailed instructions issued to it by the Assembly, the Soviet government was wholly justified in its insistence that this committee must still be subject to the ultimate authority of the Security Council. The Security Council is the only agency empowered by the charter to enforce the decisions of the United Nations when enforcement becomes necessary.

The great danger inherent in the compromise proposal is to be found in the lack of any provision for a United Nations police agency in Palestine between the time when the British mandate is terminated and the date when the two new states become independent. Is it likely that the militia that the Jewish and Arab states are to be encouraged to create can present serious disorder during such a transition period, if powerful interests in either state are bent upon provoking clashes?

Can the executive committee appointed by the Assembly be expected to preserve order merely by moral suasion? Will the successful execution of the whole plan not be needlessly jeopardized unless the Assembly prevails upon the Security Council to create an international police force made available by several smaller powers which can assure the protection of life and property in Palestine until partition has been completed?

THERE CAN BE little doubt that even after the Assembly has reached a final decision many other major obstacles will still have to be surmounted before the peoples of Palestine are assured of security and independence. But the agreement reached already offers a tonic and much needed lesson to the unconverted isolationists, to the congenital pessimists, to the "world government now" zealots, and to all of the other groups who have been howling to high heaven that the United Nations was impotent.

No objective observer of world affairs could maintain that the Jewish people would ever have secured the national home promised them by the Balfour declaration had their fate been entrusted solely to the tender mercies of the British government or of the other major powers. The establishment of an independent Jewish commonwealth will be brought about because a vast majority of the democratic peoples have come to the conclusion that justice, humanity and the cause of world peace demand such a measure, and because the force of public opinion has at last been able to make itself effectively felt through the Assembly of the United Nations.

Nor could the solution which is now imminent have been achieved had it not been for the unfaltering faith and vision of such leaders of the Jewish people as Dr. Chaim Weizmann and his associates in the Jewish Agency, and of such apostles of Zionism here in this country as Rabbi Stephen Wise and Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver. It is because of their devotion and because of the sacrifices of their followers that one of the noblest ideals of modern times is about to be realized.

IN PROPOSING rationing of scarce commodities and price and wage control, Mr. Truman must have known that he would clash head on with conservative Republicans. He sounded, in his address, rather like an economics professor lecturing a backward and none too bright pupil.

The shocking and backhanded way in which the Republicans worked to pull the rope from under price control in June of 1946 was uppermost in the President's mind. His pique is understandable. But it will scarcely contribute to the harmony essential in at least a minimum degree if a workable European aid program is finally to be adopted.

Washington Calling

Differences With Congress

THERE IS no use trying to conceal the seriousness of the differences that exist between the President and the Congress. Beneath the surface of agreement over the general objective of aid to Europe, feeling is bitter, the resentments acute.

Only a trace of it crept into President Truman's message to Congress. He reminded the Congress of the number of warnings he had uttered on the subject of inflation.

Speaking privately, Mr. Truman is much franker. He feels that Congress, in the adjournment resolution adopted last summer, treated him with suspicion and something like contempt. In attempting in that resolution to reserve for themselves the right to return on their own initiative, the Republican majority, in Mr. Truman's view, trespassed on his constitutional prerogatives.

In the events leading up to the call of the special session was another source of ill feeling. In his first meeting with congressional leaders in September, the President felt he had made the whole grim picture in Europe just as plain as possible. He had hoped that Republican leaders would openly support the call. When they failed to speak up, Chairman Charles A. Eaton of the House Foreign Affairs Committee was an exception—the President went ahead on his own. That is how it looks from the White House. On Capitol Hill, leading Republicans grumble over what they insist was the President's failure to consult with them over the call of the special session. They complain, rather childishly, that the President in his call put domestic control of inflation ahead of aid to Europe.

IN PROPOSING rationing of scarce commodities and price and wage control, Mr. Truman must have known that he would clash head on with conservative Republicans. He sounded, in his address, rather like an economics professor lecturing a backward and none too bright pupil.

THE MAN who will be called Hans Kunze is a 27-year-old former American prisoner of war who lives in Hamburg. In the fall of 1946, he visited Berlin. MVD agents immediately picked him up on the Friedrichstrasse corner of the Unter den Linden, took him to MVD headquarters at Kupfergraben, and there charged him with espionage. Kunze is a puzzled little man, like the hero of the prewar novel, Little Man, What Now? He had no notion that the Soviets regard the mere accident of having been a prisoner of the Western allies as a deeply suspicious fact, for which it is estimated that tens of thousands have been arrested. Bewildered and terrified, Kunze denies the charge.

After three interrogations, the MVD agents lost patience. Kunze was thrown to the floor of the interrogation chamber and beaten with truncheons and empty beer bottles while a radio blared to drown his screams. He persisted in his denial of espionage and was interrogated in this fashion every night for 10 nights.

Between interrogations, he was kept in a dungeon in a cellar of the MVD headquarters. This place was unheated, windowless and without plumbing facilities. As many as 25 suspects at a time, the majority Socialists or former Western prisoners like Kunze, were crammed into this filthy hole. On Sundays there were no interrogations, since the MVD officer took the day off. But on these days the MVD guards brought their women into the prison for a drinking bout. When drunk, the guards amused themselves by entering the dungeon and whipping the prisoners with wire cables.

AFTER nearly three months of this life, Kunze was transferred to Sachsenhausen. As under the Nazis three rings of guards encircled the camp; as under the Nazis the prisoners received a diet of water soup, a little bread and a few half-rotten potatoes. The Russian commandant of the camp, Lieutenant Colonel Rudenko, even had a former Nazi SS man as his assistant. The place was the same as in the old days, except that there were no gas chambers or death ovens. The Soviet terror is certainly more complete, and perhaps more ruthless than the terror of the Nazis, but differs from it, at least in this respect. Nonetheless, there was cruelty enough. At Sachsenhausen 35 to 40 prisoners died daily, many of them under punishment. Three classes of punishment were used. The lightest was the "karrer"—solitary confinement without food. Medium punishment was the "bunker"—being placed in an open hole in the ground from 15 to 25 feet deep where offenders had "to stand in their own filth" for 10 or 15 days. Most of those

THESE ARE manifestations of the night of the soul, no more nor less shocking than the general run of the official data on the subject. Moreover, this ruthless and brutal terror is the motive force of the whole machinery, political, economic and controlling, of the Soviet zone of Germany.

There are plenty of other superlatively objectionable features of the Soviet zone machinery—the virtual one-party system, for example and the gigantic venture in unashamed economic imperialism which are the Soviet-owned German industries. But since terror is the motive force of the whole machine, it will not be enough merely to remove these objectionable features. The machine the Soviets have erected in their zone must be dismantled in toto before we can agree with them as to the German future. And since there is not the slightest possibility that the Soviets will completely undo their work of two years in Germany, it is fruitless for the present to continue trying to seek agreement with them.

Pension Plan Cases Argued Before NLRB

By Alfred Friendly

The National Labor Relations Board heard argument yesterday on a new issue, of potentially increasing significance—whether or not the law requires employers to bargain with unions over pension payments and retirement plans.

The question arose in two cases before the board, both involving the CIO United Steelworkers. One involves the Inland Steel Co., the second W. W. Cross & Co. of East Jaffrey, N. Y.

In both, trial examiners presented intermediate reports finding the companies guilty of an unfair labor practice in having paid pension and retirement plans into effect without having consulted the union, with which they have bargaining contracts. The examiners recommended that the companies be ordered to bargain with the union on these subjects.

As the case moved yesterday to the NLRB members for final decision, the issue involved had what was described as "intensified" importance. This is because in recent negotiations, unions have increasingly laid stress on "fringe" benefits—such as pension and retirement plans—instead of straight wage boosts.

Frank Donner, attorney for the union, contended to the board that the pensions are a condition of employment, being a form of deferred wages. As such, he declared, they fall within the category of subjects about which the labor law requires collective bargaining.

Donner argued also that retirement on pension is, in reality, a discharge by the employer and that therefore the union should have the right to bargain on the circumstance under which a worker may "be turned out on the street."

Donner contended the pensions are a condition of employment. But Ernest S. Ballard, Chicago attorney for Inland, countered that the Wagner National Labor Relations Act of 1935 did not require companies to bargain on such matters.

22,000 Employees Covered

Ballard told the board all 22,000 Inland employees were blanketed under a company sponsored retirement plan. He added the company has 26 separate bargaining units involving AFL as well as CIO unions and added:

"The pension plan covers all employees from top to bottom without exception. It goes on from year to year. It is not something that can be negotiated at every collective bargaining meeting."

Both cases arose before the passage of the Taft-Hartley Act under the old Wagner Act. The steelworkers have not complied with the requirements of the new law relating to the filing of reports and non-Communist affidavits from its officers. Accordingly, they are denied recourse to the NLRB.

The board took up their cases, nevertheless, because of the importance of the issue they raised. Should the NLRB rule in the union's favor, it may give the union a specified time to comply with the affidavit filing provisions. Otherwise it will forfeit the fruits of the award.

Blockade Ended Peace Made In Battle of Newark Bay

By The Associated Press

The "Battle of Newark Bay" ended last night with agreement among the feuding city officials and a salvage company, and the city called off its "embattled" fireboats.

Undersecretary of the Navy W. John Kenney announced settlement of the dispute over scrapping the old battleship New Mexico on Newark's waterfront.

And Mayor Vincent Murphy of Newark said he was demolishing the fireboats, which have been valiantly blocking the channel to the scrapping yard with their brass water nozzles for the past week.

The objection was that the scrapping operations would delay the planned development of Newark's waterfront.

Under the agreement Morris E. Lipsett, salvage operator, will scrap three battleships over the next nine months at Port Newark. The Port of New York Authority will begin September 1, 1948, its 11 million-dollar development of the Newark harbor, Austin J. Tobin, executive director, announced. The New Mexico will move in first thing tomorrow morning, Lipsett said.

The Federal Diary

by

Recommendations On Reorganization Must Be In by Dec. 1

GOVERNMENT reorganization is again being studied. Each Federal agency must make its recommendations for reorganization no later than December 1. An order to that effect went out yesterday from Budget Director James Webb.

Webb said that each proposed change must be accompanied by a memo stating the reasons for it. He pointed out that the reorganization act would expire next March 31. Webb suggested that each agency study every possible change that would lead to economy and efficiency.

One plan certain to be sent to Congress would transfer to the Labor Department the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, United States Employment Service, and possibly the Vocational Rehabilitation Service of the Federal Security Agency.

Also, studies are being made of all Federal-State financial relationships—of agencies such as Public Roads, Public Health, USES, and the like that makes grants of Federal funds to States under certain conditions. There has been some talk of creating a new agency to handle the billion-dollar-plus grant program.

PHA: People who should know say that Dillon S. Myer won't be Public Housing Administrator for many more weeks. They look for him to be transferred to another Federal post.

A list of six possible successors to Myer is reported to have been sent to the White House. Myer is serving a recess appointment and he faces a fight for confirmation even though he was confirmed last year for the post.

PHA is under attack from several congressional committees for events that took place before Myer became administrator.

NAVY is requiring many of its employees to reduce their accumulated annual leave to a maximum of 60 days. Some employees are being compelled to take leave before the end of this year whether they want to or not. The Navy's leave liability runs into several hundred millions of dollars.

INTERIOR'S proposed changes in its working hours is still an unsettled question. But it now appears that the Budget Bureau will oppose the 8:30 to 5 schedule suggested by Secretary Krug.

All the bus and streetcar companies have opposed any change in the hours of interior employees. Their representatives say they already have more business than they can handle at the proposed new interior hours.

TREASURY will oppose the bill now pending in Congress that would exempt the first $1440 in pensions to retired Federal workers from income taxes. However, the Civil Service Commission will support the legislation. A group of retired Federal employees have started a drive to get congressional action on the bill.

VETERANS now make up 44 per cent of all full-time Federal employees in this country. Of the 1,766,650 Government employees, 770,027 are veterans. Ninety-five per cent of the veterans are men. Of the 37,587 women who have veteran preference in Government, 22,349 are former members of women's military organizations and 15,238 are wives of disabled veterans or widows of veterans.

CIVIL SERVICE will recommend to Congress enactment of a bill that won't pass. It wants to strip the Senate of its authority to confirm the nominations of postmasters.

NOTES: The Machinists Union is demanding a minimum increase of 19 cents an hour for Navy machinists. It will protest every increase under that figure. The wage boost for machinists here was from 7 to 16 cents an hour. Interior Secretary Krug will return to his office here on December 1. His rest-cure is bringing him back to A-1 physical condition. He has no intention of resigning.

CEILING: The President suggested for wage controls has taken some of the steam out of the drive to raise salaries of Federal workers. Employee leaders are frankly concerned over the possibility that the President's suggestion will stymie pay raise legislation indefinitely.

If the President urges the Congress to increase Federal salaries in his January message, he's sure to be denounced as "inconsistent." But he could justify an increase by citing a couple of statistics—that the cost of living has gone up about 60 per cent since 1941, but the average Federal worker has received a pay increase of only 31 per cent. The white-collar Government employee was given his first general raise in July, 1946. Since that time the cost living has shot up 23 per cent.

Meantime, Representative Stevenson (R., Wis.), the ranking member of the House Civil Service Committee, has announced his support of a cost-of-living pay raise. He said that many Federal workers were being forced to take part-time jobs in order to make ends meet.

The able Wisconsin legislator is emerging as the No. 1 House member on Federal worker problems. He was largely responsible for securing House approval of the liberalized retirement bill that bears his name.

Bronze Plaque Stolen From House Entrance; Investigation Launched by Capitol Police

Crime hit the Capitol yesterday with disappearance of a handsome bronze plaque from the east entrance of the House Chamber.

Capitol police said the plaque—a circular sculpture, about a foot in diameter showing a coiled snake and leaves—disappeared between the time the doors of the House were locked after the opening of the special session and the time the doors were opened yesterday morning.

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr. (R., Mass.) personally inspected the damage at Capitol.

Police launched their investigation. House Sergeant at Arms William F. Russell said Capitol Police Captain William J. Broderick had taken direct charge of the investigation.

The missing panel was one of four identical ones. Two of them are set into the doors. When the House is in session these doors swing back against the wall on each side of the entrance to join matching wall panels. It was from the north wall panel that the plaque was taken.

The plaque had been fixed in place by bolts, and these had been removed. Police said an attempt had been made to take the plaque from the opposite panel.

Capitol Architect David Lynn said the doors, made of birdseye maple and about 14 feet high, had been in place since the House wing was opened in 1857.

He said no value could be fixed on the plaque, that no replacement is on hand.

He said that souvenir hunters had taken fragments of Capitol decorations in the past, but that this was the biggest item he recalled having been taken.

Police said an attempt had been made to take the plaque from the opposite panel.

Jury Frees Driver of Drunk Count

Case Resulted From Auto Hitting 94-Year-old Father Of Judge Barse

A Municipal Court jury yesterday exonerated Clyde O. Hulse, 46, 4307 1st st. se., on a charge of driving while drunk. The jury deliberated 15 minutes.

The charge was the result of an accident on March 8 in which John Barse, 94-year-old father of Chief Judge of the Municipal Court George P. Barse, was seriously injured.

Barse was crossing Pennsylvania ave. at 14th st. nw., when he was struck by the car operated by Hulse. Barse, still confined to his home by the accident, suffered a fracture of the left leg and lacerations to the head.

Hulse, taking the stand yesterday on the second day of the trial, testified that he had two drinks several hours previous to the time of the accident. He testified that he was driving while drunk, a man did not have to be so drunk that he staggered, but as drunk as a person was under the influence of liquor to the extent of slowing down his mental reactions, he would be guilty of violating the law.

Defense Attorney R. Sidney Johnson pointed out to the jury that Hulse had applied the brakes to his car within 30 seconds after first sighting Barse. None of the policemen that responded to the accident call said that Hulse was incapable.

The jury found Hulse not guilty.

Boy, 4, Safe at Home After Night in Woods

STEPHEN ANDREWS AND "SNOWBALL"

Lost in the woods for 14 hours, they stood by each other

NAVY MEN JOINED ST. MARY'S COUNTY RESIDENTS IN SEARCH FOR BOY

Hermanville, Md., Nov. 18 (Sp.). Four-year-old Stephen Andrews and his two faithful puppies rested at home here today after spending 14 hours last night lost in a thick wood 2 miles away.

The youngster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coy Andrews, was found by three sailors of the nearby Naval Air Test Center at Patuxent River at 6:15 a. m. today after 250 persons including St. Mary's County residents, sailors and Marines of the station scoured the woods through the night.

He was rushed to the infirmary at the station, where doctors found him unharmed by his experience, in spite of the fact that the thermometer hovered about 34 degrees, according to Sheriff Willard B. Long.

The search party got under way about 7 o'clock last night after a neighbor telephoned Sheriff Long that the youngster was missing. Mrs. Andrews said she had seen him playing outdoors with his dogs about 5 p. m., when she began preparing dinner, but was unable to find him later.

The Naval Station dispatched a detachment of 35 sailors and 15 Marines to the scene armed with giant searchlights mounted on a truck. Lieut. (j. g.) John Turner led the group.

Andrews, a refrigeration mechanic at the station, and his other son, Paul, aged 9, joined the group, which spread out in a chain combing the area.

He was found by Ray Sutherland, John Smetana and Arthur Lipnick, sailors, followed by Miss Elizabeth Shelton, a reporter.

When they came upon the lad, he was rubbing the sleep out of his eyes. He immediately began crying. "I'm lost. I want my mother."

Cuddled against his two puppies—a collie named Snowball and a mongrel yet unnamed—Stephen was blue with cold, the sheriff reported.

He had lost a shoe, but his heavy underwear, polo shirt, coveralls, sweater and snowsuit jacket were still intact. At home, he was given a hot bath, a bowl of oatmeal and bundled off to bed.

Corporation Counsel Aide To Review Clegg Case

West's Report Goes To Maher, Whose Role in Investigation Is Guarded Secret

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

Daniel B. Maher, recently appointed special assistant corporation counsel, has had a second "hot potato" dropped in his lap by Commissioner John Russell Young.

Young yesterday confirmed reports that Maher is reviewing Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West's report on an investigation of police brutality charges filed by Julius Willie Clegg.

Clegg, a 26-year-old war veteran and an employee of The Washington Post, charged he was arrested by police August 2, detained for 34 hours without charge, and beaten by two detectives at headquarters.

District Building sources hinted that West's report recommended police trial board action against the police officers. Maher's role in the investigation remained a guarded secret.

Young's action in turning over West's report to Maher appeared to be the same procedure used in the case of "removal" charges against Fire Chief Clement Murphy. In the Murphy case, the corporation counsel's complete report and recommendations were dropped on Maher's desk for "action."

District officials yesterday were close mouthed concerning what is happening in the Clegg case.

Out of West's Hands

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young and Commissioner Guy Mason assumed puzzled expressions when queried, insisted they couldn't recall acting on the case. West steadfastly maintained he knew nothing about it. "It's entirely out of my hands," he declared.

Commissioner John Russell Young said Maher is going to "handle" the recommendations West made in his report. "That's what we got him (Maher) in there for," he said. "The (corporation counsel's staff) have to do so much work of their own to do."

He denied there was any dissatisfaction with West's report and recommendations.

Maher said he had studied the Clegg case thoroughly and would present his recommendations to the Commissioners "in the near future." He would not discuss the nature of his recommendations.

A Federal grand jury on September 16 declined to return indictments on Clegg's charges of brutality. The case was referred to Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester Gray on September 23 to determine whether action should be initiated by a police trial board.

Gray said yesterday he had never worked on the investigation because he was too busy with other assignments. The case was turned over to Assistant Corporation Counsel Milton Korman, who was also busy he passed it on to Assistant Corporation Counsel Oliver Gasch. Gasch was ill at home yesterday.

West said the final report was submitted to him by Gasch and "others." He forwarded it to the Commissioners with his recommendations "about last Wednesday," West said.

Joseph A. Padway, former chief counsel for the American Federation of Labor, left an estate valued at $85,000 to be divided between his wife and a daughter, after minor bequests. It was revealed in Mr. Padway's will filed for probate in District Court yesterday.

The estate consisted mainly of cash and securities. Mr. Padway's wife, Lydia Padway of the Shoreham Hotel, and a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Weinsel of Milwaukee, Wis., will share the estate after $2400 is removed for the benefit of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish charities in Milwaukee.

A $10,000 life insurance policy will be divided among nine relatives.

Mr. Padway died in San Francisco, October 18, 1946, of a heart attack while attending an AFL convention.

Detective Sgt. Rouse Wins Year's Battle With Injuries

Detective Sgt. Clyde F. Rouse, 45, was back at work yesterday after a year's absence from the police force because of serious injuries in the line of duty.

On November 1, 1946, his leg was crushed when he attempted to stop the driver of a stolen car. He was dragged several blocks before the auto crashed into a trailer truck.

His partner, Precinct Detective Harry E. Hamilton, 39, was fatally injured in the accident.

"It's great to be back in harness again," Rouse declared yesterday as he worked over the files in the office of Lieut. Thomas Sullivan, in charge of precinct detectives. He will be kept on light duty for a while.

Rouse and Hamilton were riding in a headquarters auto squad

Fuse Blaze Draws Seven Fire Outfits

He said the fire had been brought under control with fire extinguishers when the equipment arrived a few minutes after he had sounded the alarm.

Area News in Brief

Check Passer Talks
Himself Into 90 Days

One little word that slipped out will cost George M. Lewis, 30, a 90-day stretch in the District Jail.

Lewis, a former Portsmouth, Va., policeman, was arrested here last Monday by Detective Sgt. David Higgins of the check squad. Yesterday, when brought before Municipal Judge Armond W. Scott, Lewis pleaded guilty to three charges of passing bad checks.

"I like your attitude and the way you've admitted these things," said Judge Scott. "I'd like to give you a break. Have you anything to say for yourself?"

The judge apparently was ready to turn the case over to a probation officer.

"Why, yes, Your Honor," said the prisoner. "I would appreciate it if you would be lenient with me, and I promise to make restitution in these cases—just as I have in the past."

The judge looked up. "What do you mean... PAST?" he asked sternly.

Detective Higgins volunteered the information that Lewis had previously been arrested on bad check charges and currently is wanted in Richmond and Suffolk, Va., on such charges.

"In that case," said Judge Scott, "I am going to have to sentence you to 25 or 30 days on each charge."

Lewis, who had only two cents in his pocket when he appeared in court yesterday, was led away to the lockup.

The divorce action was brought on grounds of cruelty.

Trailer Camp Residents Face Ouster Order

Residents of a trailer camp in the 6200 block of Marlboro pike at Hillside, Md., must move or face trespassing charges, Prince Georges County Sanitary Engineer Charles L. Wood said yesterday.

Wood previously had ordered the camp, in which about 30 persons live, closed because of a lack of sanitation facilities.

His announcement yesterday followed a conference between State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie; Charles Holle, owner of the land occupied by the trailers, and Robert W. McCullough, attorney for the trailer residents.

Wood said Holle asserted he had not given permission to the trailer residents to remain on his property and that Fred Sparer, former camp operator, had abandoned it following Holle's refusal to grant a long-term lease.

Wood said Attorney McCullough agreed to inform the residents that the trespassing warrants would be sworn out if they have not moved "within a reasonable time."

Meanwhile, 51 neighbors to another trailer camp in the 1200 block of Owens rd., Oxon Hill district, have petitioned Prince Georges commissioners to close the camp, claiming it is a "detriment to the orderly development of the community." The commissioners have directed Wood to investigate.

The election of Senator O'Connor, Democrat, by an official margin of 232 votes of a total of 472,000 is contested by D. John Markey, Republican.

The ballot check is being made by Jenner and two other committee members, Senators Bricker (R., Ohio) and Myers (D., Pa.).

Safecracking Tools Lead To Fugitive

A report by two rabbit-hunting youths yesterday ended the freedom and lone wolf plans of an escaped Virginia road gang prisoner.

Prince Georges County police, acting on the boys' story of finding two acetylene tanks in a woods near Silver Hill, arrested William G. Midgett, 25, who escaped from Road Camp 11; near Culpeper, Va., last September.

Midgett, police said, was found asleep in a stolen automobile on Branch rd., near the boys' find. In the car, police said, were sticks of dynamite, an acetylene torch, crowbars, hammers and bolt cutters which had been accumulated by theft apparently for a career of safecracking.

He had already started that career, police said, by breaking into the office of Dr. Elmer M. Smith, 1930 Nichols ave. se., Sunday, and stealing a safe containing $800 worth of dental gold. This, he told police, he blasted open in a spot along Piscataway Creek, near T. B. Md.

Prince Georges police charged him with housebreaking and larceny of the Cottage City Pharmacy, where 144 bars of soap and a gallon of the Cheever Drug Store, where $800 worth of articles, including some narcotics, were taken.

Detective Sgt. Irving Lubar, Washington Metropolitan Police, was to lodge a detainer against the prisoner for the dental office theft, Prince Georges County police said.

Midgett gave police a Washington address, 1529 S st. se. He said he broke away from the road gang because he wasn't given enough to eat and that he had served five years and seven months of an 18-year sentence for automobile thefts when he escaped.

He was a member of the Chevy Chase, Metropolitan and Arts Clubs.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Frederika Holden Proctor, and three sisters, Mrs. William H. McDonough, Mrs. Charles E. Dole and Miss Elizabeth H. Proctor, all of New York.

Md. Agencies Seek Naval Base Materials

Baltimore, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Board of Public Works will be asked to set up a priority list for materials to be distributed to State departments from the former Navy amphibious base at Solomons.

State Engineer John B. Funk said today he would ask the board to provide such a list in response to the demands from the various institutions for materials.

"It looks as if we will get about $250,000 worth of materials out of the place for use at State institutions," he said. He had originally estimated such salvageable goods as worth $100,000.

The State took over the base after signing an agreement with the Navy.

State prisoners were being taken to the site to begin demolition, Funk said.

Recently the Board of Natural Resources adopted a committee report on use of the base.

This included using a classroom building for instruction of State Game and Inland Fish Commission officers; Red Cross aquatic training, conservation study groups for 4-H Clubs, Boy and Girl Scouts and other public and semi-public agencies.

Mrs. Claude E. Arnold

Manassas, Va., Nov. 18.—Funeral services for Mrs. Claude E. Arnold, 66, were held at Trinity Episcopal Church here this afternoon. Burial was in Manassas Cemetery.

Mrs. Arnold, the former Miss Ella Heymond, died at her home in Manassas Sunday. She was a native of Devon, England, and married Claude E. Arnold of Annapolis in 1909. She was a member of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church near Annapolis. Survivors include her husband and a sister, Mrs. J. F. Burks of Manassas.

A letter of resignation was submitted yesterday by Douglas H. Riggs, Jr., who was appointed county engineer last June 1. Riggs said he would leave the county government on December 1 to accept a "better" position.

The board took under advisement a request from Mrs. Alma Opal of Takoma Park, that the county investigate the possibility of obtaining State aid in establishment of a county school for mentally and physically handicapped children.

The board members disclosed they had been notified by attorneys for Civil Service Commissioner Jo V. Morgan they would be summoned to a pretrial hearing November 26 at which depositions will be taken for the commissioners on a controversial press release issued by the county government which accused Morgan of "dilatory service."

The commissioners also authorized a day off for all county employees on December 26, thus assuring a four-day weekend Christmas holiday.

St. Louis Browns Are Sought by Rodenberg

Blue Plate Special:

GOLF TEMPEST—Ed Dudley was unanimously reelected for his sixth term as president of the Professional Golfers Association yesterday but that's no sign the pro golfers are one big happy family again. If you think they are, you don't know your factions.

Ben Hogan is still hopping mad about the tournament committee's selection of Byron Nelson for the Ryder Cup team. Vic Ghezzi is sore about being left off the team that played the British. Horton Smith is miffed by his failure to succeed Dudley as president, and still unsettled is the matter of legal and illegal clubs.

In a nutshell, Hogan is not fond of Nelson. As long as Nelson was around, Hogan couldn't quite be the top name in golf. With Nelson in retirement last season, Hogan says the PGA Committee exceeded its authority in putting him on the Ryder Cup team. Ghezzi says PGA politicians kept him off the team by dropping the Goodall and Inverness tournaments, in which he scored points, from the Ryder Cup scoring lists.

Ghezzi is sore on another point, too. They disqualified him from the Houston tournament for nicking his clubs to give the ball backspin. Now the PGA says his kind of clubs are all right. Most all the top golfers were punching their clubs anyway. The British at first objected to playing the Americans with their punched clubs, but acceded to the PGA point that "the gallery gets a belt out of seeing our pros put backspin on the ball."

SIGNALS OFF—All season long the complaint has been that Sammy Baugh was too often forced to run for his life while trying to get a pass away for the Redskins. It's something of a tribute to his skill that he leads the league in the percentage of passes completed, under the circumstances, which include the Redskin line.

The other day Baugh made somewhat of a confession, albeit in fun. He was invited to talk to the newly graduated class of FBI men at the Department of Justice. Scanning the determined faces of the group, Baugh said: "Gentlemen, I am glad to be with you. This is the best protection I've had all year."

SCOUT REPORT—Georgetown is leaving nothing to chance with its game against George Washington coming up this week, and has had its own scouts observing the Colonials almost since the start of the season. That's in contrast to the Hoyas' game with Boston College.

As Coach Jack Hagerty explains it in the Hoya, Georgetown student paper, he was unable to detach one of his own coaches for scouting duty against Boston College. "Our staff was otherwise occupied, so I asked a professional scout to bring a full report on Boston College down to Washington so that he could help us set up our defenses for the Eagles."

"He came down with copious notes. All the formations and giveaways he could detect on each individual. It was a beautiful job, lacking nothing in detail but when Mush Dubofsky and George Murtough began asking questions about the players we knew on the Boston College team, the scout was a bit puzzled."

"It developed he didn't know about the particular players we were asking about. Then we discovered he had scouted Boston University, not Boston College."

PENNANT BOUND—The Red Sox took their biggest stride toward the 1948 American League pennant this week when they bought Shortstop Vern Stephens and Pitcher Jack Kramer from the Browns. With the right-handed-hitting Stephens shooting for Fenway Park's convenient left-field fence, the Red Sox run production will be considerably stepped up.

The item about the sale that didn't quite ring true was the purchase price. In addition to seven players acquired by the Browns, none of them able to make good in the majors as yet, the report was that the Red Sox paid over a sum of cash "estimated at from $50,000 to $100,000." That more money than that figured in the deal ought to be obvious. The Detroit Tigers offered $200,000 for Stephens alone a few weeks ago, and the Red Sox offered the same figure last summer.

Manager Joe McCarthy's next move with the Red Sox probably will be to shift Shortstop Johnny Pesky to third base. It could be Stephens at third, but Pesky demonstrated last season in a short whirl at the job that he was at home at it. As for the Browns, they're wrecked.

Pointing for the Big Game

Baltimore Would Get Major Club

Baltimore, Nov. 18 (AP)—Bob Rodenberg, Washington sportsman and president of the Baltimore professional football Colts, disclosed today that he was endeavoring to purchase controlling interest in the St. Louis Browns and transfer the American League baseball franchise to this city.

The head of the Baltimore All-America Football Conference club said he had discussed the matter with a representative of Dick Muckerman, principal owner of the Browns, but that no definite offer had yet been made.

"Baltimore is ripe and ready for big league baseball," Rodenberg said, adding that he had talked

Majors Will Have Answer

BOB RODENBERG doesn't have the St. Louis Browns "by a hell of a sight," but the idea is there, and he's "still trying."

That was Rodenberg's comment last night to an Associated Press story that he is trying to buy the Browns for transfer to Baltimore.

"How far I'll get all depends on what happens at the major league baseball meeting in New York December 9," Rodenberg told a Washington Post reporter.

At that time, Rodenberg plans to "find out whether the 16 major league clubowners would approve" the transfer of the St. Louis franchise to Baltimore.

The sale of Shortstop Vern Stephens and Pitcher Jack Kramer of the Browns to the Boston Red Sox Monday was a shock to Rodenberg.

"That St. Louis-Boston deal may change the picture for me," Rodenberg said. "It may mean that Mr. Muckerman (owner of the Browns) now has enough money to keep the Browns."

"Certainly the sale of Stephens and Kramer doesn't make the Browns any stronger, but I'm becoming pretty well acquainted with taking over last-place clubs."

This reference, no doubt, was to the Baltimore team of the All-America Conference of professional football. Rodenberg and associates took over the defunct Miami, Fla., franchise transferred it to Baltimore, and have done well in their maiden season there.

with American League officials, as well as with representatives of the Baltimore Orioles, members of the International Baseball League.

To Advantage of All

"I don't think St. Louis is big enough to support two major league clubs, and transfer of the Browns to Baltimore would be to the advantage of both the National and American leagues," he said.

"I've gone over the St. Louis figures and the deal can be made," Rodenberg added.

But in St. Louis Muckerman was emphatic in a denial that there was any deal pending with Rodenberg.

"I never have met Rodenberg," he said. "In fact, I've never even heard of him. I have not had any correspondence with him or any of his representatives and so far as I know neither have any of my representatives."

"Before there are any more rumors about my selling the Browns, let these parties back them up with dollars."

Chief drawback to the plan is lack of a suitable baseball park, but construction of a new Baltimore stadium is expected to get under way by January 1. However, this admittedly would not be ready for major league operation until the 1949 season.

Orioles in 33d St. Stadium

The Orioles now play in the 33d St. Municipal Stadium, which can seat 60,000 for football and is used by the Colts, Navy and other football teams. It is an open stadium without roof.

"It would be a great thing for the city," said Manager Tommy Thompson of the Orioles, who recalled that the Baltimore baseball club voted at the minor league meeting in Los Angeles last year to allow the majors to take over the Baltimore territory.

The Orioles have broken minor league attendance figures since moving into the stadium when old Oriole Park burned July 4, 1944.

Rodenberg said he had discussed the move with Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, and met no objection. Washington, an American League city, is 40 miles south of Baltimore.

"I've known Griffith since I was 5 years old and have been, in fact, a very, very minor stockholder in the Senators since I was 9," Rodenberg said.

"He thinks a great rivalry would develop between Washington and Baltimore."

Browns Trade Kinder, Hitchcock to Sox

St. Louis, Nov. 18 (AP)—Pitcher Ellis Kinder and Infielder Bill Hitchcock of the St. Louis Browns were traded tonight to the Boston Red Sox for Southpaw Clem Dreisewerd, Infielder Sam Dente, a third player still to be named, and what a Browns spokesman said was "a little cash."

Central Coach Enjoys Role Of Underdog

By Herb Heft

Post Reporter

"I never dreamed that coaching a football team could be so easy," Jan Jankowski, the former Catholic University grid star, who has been the Central High pilot for the past seven years, was saying yesterday.

He was sitting in the top row at the school stadium watching his Vikings go through their first practice session in three days. They had less than two weeks to go before taking the field at Griffith Stadium on the night of November 28 to play for the interhigh championship in the benefit game sponsored by the Board of Education and The Washington Post.

"This whole setup is ideal," Jankowski was saying.

"We have gone through our six game interhigh schedule undefeated, and are given the psychological advantage of being proclaimed the underdogs."

"We play our most bitter rival, Tech, in that big game, and my job is made easier because my team is in perfect condition, and in the tradition of all past Central teams, the boys are 'up' for Tech."

"We like being underdogs," Jan continued, "not only because it might give those Tech boys a wee bit of over confidence, but also because we know that we can lick 'em."

Looks at Records

"Let's look at the records," the Central coach said. "We have beaten every interhigh team we have beaten, even though Tech has run up bigger scores and held all its opponents scoreless. It's nice to have a scoreless record, but it's the win column that really counts."

"Let's look, now, beyond this year's record and recall what happened the last time Central played Tech. That was last year when Tech had practically the same team they have now, including Bugs Thompson, Cecil Gray and Flea Fletcher, their best backs; Jim McCauley, their line end, and Bob Bell, their All-Inter high center."

"We had a few of the boys that we have now," he said.

Officials Probing Huge Betting Scandal in Fox-LaMotta Fight

See Other Story Page B-7

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—Officials investigating the Billy Fox-Jack LaMotta fight were reported today to have unearthed evidence of the biggest betting scandal in sports history.

At the same time a legislative investigation of boxing in New York State was demanded by the Democratic Party.

Although there were no formal announcements, it was said the inquiry into last Friday night's fight at Madison Square Garden which Fox won on a technical knockout in the fourth round had led to the study of LaMotta's finances. It was indicated that a move may be made to impound his bank account.

Both the New York Boxing Commission, under Chairman Eddie Egan, and District Attorney Frank S. Hogan began investigations into the bout. Hogan refused to reveal what course his inquiry had taken, but it was said that persons close to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey had been interested in the case because of the alleged huge gambling coup. Millions were reported to have been bet throughout the coun-

Hopp Traded To Pittsburgh

Boston, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Boston Braves tonight traded Outfielder Johnny Hopp and Infielder Danny Murtaugh to the Pittsburgh Pirates for Outfielder Jim Russell, Pitcher Al Lyons and Catcher Bill Salkeld.

Russell, who at 28 is three years younger than the fleet Hopp, has played all three outfield positions. A switch hitter, he is a right-handed thrower and is considered to have a strong arm, something the Tribe lacked last season.

Hopp, who also can play first base, came to the Braves from the St. Louis Cardinals two years ago.

Murtaugh spent last season at Milwaukee and didn't figure in Tribal plans for 1947.

Lyons, a lefty right-hander, went to the Pirates last season from the Yankee chain for Infielder Eddie Basinski and cash. He is 29 and carries 195 pounds on his 6-foot, 2-inch frame. He was used as a relief pitcher last season, winning one and losing two for the Bucs.

Salkeld, 30 years old, has been with the Pirates since 1945 after breaking in in the Pacific League with San Diego and San Francisco. He is a left-handed batter.

Lions Get Tie On Freak Goal

The Washington Lions and St. Louis Flyers played to a thrilling 1-1 tie before 1302 fans last night at Uline Arena.

Center Don Grosso's goal with little more than a minute to play enabled the Flyers to pull even after the Lions had taken the lead on one of the strangest goals ever seen in hockey.

Dan Porteous, taking the puck at mid-ice and skating deep into St. Louis territory, was unable to get off a shot, so he kept possession of the rubber and scooted around behind the Flyer net. Then, when he stopped and flipped the puck over the back of the net it hit Goalie Hec Highton in the back of the head and rebounded into the cage.

This break seemed to be enough to sew up the game, but a St. Louis drive just before the final buzzer evened the score. Paul Gladu and Ernie Trigis fired close shots that Gordie Bell blocked. But Grosso took the second rebound and flipped it past the prostrate Lion goalie.

Although the Lions exhibited the best passing and stick handling they have shown to date, Hec Highton, the elongated St. Louis goalie, put on a show of net-tending surpassing anything shown here since the season began.

Making eight saves in the opening stanza, Highton got better as the Lions stepped up the tempo of their play. He blocked 14 shots in the second period. Lion net-tender Gordie Bell, although not as busy as his rival goalie, was unbeatable over the first 40 minutes as he stopped five shots in the first period and 11 in the second.

Dear Folks: At Bowie. The Wednesday program is the best scheduled at the present meeting with two $10,000 dishes offered the horsemen. The W. P. Burch Memorial, a sprint of six furlongs, has drawn a field of nine with the Shamrock Stable's entry of Air Patrol and Little Harp the likely favorite. The other big test is the Bowie Breeders' Stake, a battle of amile and a sixteenth for 2-year-olds and the probable choice is Alan T. Clark's Fritz Maisel. In all, five distance races are on the card. The Burch is named for the father of Preston Burch, now the trainer for Brookneade Stable which starts Music in the sprint. Frank Coyle, foreman for trainer Tommy Rodrock, died yesterday in a Baltimore hospital. John P. Turner, sr., racing secretary here, has signed in a similar capacity for the 1948 Suffolk Downs meetings. There are 85 jockeys registered here. At least 20 of them have said they were going to Charles Town. Post time for the first race there will be 1 p. m., according to Greg Johnson who does the missionary work for that track. See you on the rail.—BILL.

Biff Jones Meets Filberto Osario

It will be back to the featherweight class for Herb Jones, the Southeast southpaw, next Monday night when the Biff will meet Filberto Osario, Puerto Rican fighter in the feature 10-rounder at Turner's Arena.

Harry Groves, Jones' manager, announced yesterday that Herb will campaign strictly in the 126-pound division, where he feels "Herbie fights his best." Jones gave away as much as eight pounds to Johnny (Honeyboy) Williams when he lost to the New Yorker in a 10-rounder here several weeks ago.

Pilaster Likes Chilly Weather, Wins Hambleton at Bowie

Kirk Boots Gelding In By 4 Lengths

By Walter Haight

Bowie, Md., Nov. 18.—H. L. Straus' Pilaster, from the mare Air Cooled, found the chilly atmosphere of the local track to his liking today and ran off with the Hambleton, featuring the Tuesday program.

Jockey Carson Kirk booted the Pilaster gelding home four lengths in advance of the closest opposition in a field of six going a mile and 70 yards.

W. L. Brann's Legenda was second and a length in front of Mrs. W. W. Vaughan's Called.

Pilaster was the important part of the Trainer F. A. Bonal's entry which paid $3.80 in the role of favorite. The winner was clocked in 1:45 over a track that was fast for the first time at the meeting. A crowd of 7500 kept bundled up as the sun faded and the cold was penetrating.

Denage Sets Pace

Denage, stablemate of the winner, set the early pace with Called and Off-Islander closest up. Kirk, at this stage, was rating Pilaster in fourth position ahead of Legenda. Approaching the stretch, Kirk went to the inside.

However, racing room failed to develop there and he swung out. Denage weakened but Called and Off-Islander kept moving.

Pilaster, after getting abreast of the two leaders, lugged in and slightly interfered with Called and Off-Islander.

While these two were recovering, Pilaster opened a commanding lead. Legenda rallied and closed gamely but distance ran out on her. Second Victory of Year.

The victory was only the second of the year for Pilaster in a dozen tries. It was not until his previous race at Pimlico that the Straus 3-year-old reached the winner's circle in 1947.

Horses with the stretch punch were winning all the races. In the fifth event, the second best offering of the day, H. B. Pilaster's Storm Hawk, another son of Pilaster, skinned along the inside rail to come from far back to win going away. Kirk rode the High Ground Stable's American Wolf into second money ahead of W. J. Susini's Monfalon, the pacemaker most of the way.

The daily double on the 1-and-2 combination paid $38.00. Mrs. W. L. Brann's Challista won the first at $4 and G. A. Lawson's Fall Guy accounted for the second at $2.20.

Apostoli Defeats Georgie Abrams

San Francisco, Nov. 18.—(P)—Fred Apostoli of San Francisco, former middleweight champion, hammered out a 10-round decision over Georgie Abrams, former Washington (D. C.) boxer, last night in a fight which may end his successful comeback trail.

Long before he entered the ring, Apostoli said his bout with Abrams would be his last. It was his fourth fight since he reentered the boxing business two years ago. Apostoli won all but one, in which a cut over the eye kept him a technical knockout.

Apostoli and Abrams each weighed 162 pounds. The bruising battle was close all the way. Referee Jack Downey and Judge Tom Irwin awarded the decision to the San Franciscan, and Judge Billy Burke called it a draw.

'Insurrection Fails' Dudley Reelected PGA Head, Smith Faction Is Defeated

Chicago, Nov. 18.—The latest insurrection against the "old guard" in the Professional Golfers' Association was squelched today as genial Ed Dudley unanimously was re-elected president for his seventh straight term.

The solid sweep in the balloting of some 70 delegates and officers from all sections of the country crushed the behind-the-scenes candidacy of Horton Smith and an alleged "smear campaign" against Dudley.

That left as the annual meeting's only controversial item the protest of Gopher Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., against his omission from the 1947 American Ryder Cup squad which the executive committee planned to hear tonight.

Smith, veteran player from Detroit, was booed by an unidentified faction said to be at odds with the Dudley regime, but he never got a call in the voting.

Contacted after the election, Smith said he still thought the presidential tenure should be limited to three years, but extended best wishes to Dudley.

"The delegates saw fit not to nominate any opponent to the president, but I don't think it was a slam at me or those who supported me," said Smith.

Smith joined Ben Hogan in disclaiming any part of a "poison pen" attack against Dudley, an accusation which Hogan attributed to Freddie Corcoran, PGA tournament bureau manager. Hogan threatened to have a "personal" showdown with Corcoran, if the latter appeared at the meeting. Corcoran has denied from New York that he was responsible for any story linking Smith, Hogan and Dick Metz, who punched Corcoran in California last year, with the campaign against Dudley.

Iowa Board Puts Off Action On Anderson

Iowa City, Iowa, Nov. 17.—The board of control in athletics at the University of Iowa tonight failed to take any action on the resignation of Dr. Eddie Anderson, head coach of the Hawkeyes since 1939.

The board's terse announcement came after a meeting which lasted nearly four hours.

The board said that it had received no official statement from Dr. Anderson, who submitted his resignation orally to Dr. Virgil Hancher, University president, a few hours before his term upst Minnesota 13 to 7, in the season finale Saturday.

"The board has agreed to refrain from final consideration of Dr. Anderson's resignation until it has had an opportunity to confer with Dr. Anderson personally," the announcement said.

The board plans to reconvene not later than Thursday, November 20.

Second Operation Slated today for Albert Wratton

Albert L. Wratton, injured quarterback of the Richard Montgomery High football team of Rockville, Md., is still in "serious" condition and will undergo another operation today at Suburban Hospital, Bethesda.

Wratton, who suffered serious head injuries last Friday in the Rockville-Bethesda Chevy Chase football game, was reported "improved and at times conscious, but still in serious condition."

Wratton, one of 9 children, lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Wratton, at 16 Thomas st., Rockville, Md.

Georgetown Confident

G.W. Has Never Beaten Hoyas, But This Year May Be Different

By Roger Wolbarsht

AS IS USUALLY the case, Georgetown's Hoyas are heavily favored in Saturday's big local rivalry with George Washington, which is just what G. W. rooters like to see.

Last year the Hoyas were top-heavy choices to put the Colonials to rout, but the game was a very different story.

Although Georgetown won, 18-6, the Hoyas had to make the best of the breaks to do it. George Washington pushed their hated rivals at lower the Griffith Stadium turf, outgaining Georgetown on the ground and through the air by wide margins.

But the Georgetown jinx, which seems to have haunted G. W. since the series started in 1890, reared its head and the valiant Colonials dropped their sixteenth game in 17 tries against the Hoya gridmen. In 1907, G. W. played Georgetown to a scoreless tie, but never has Georgetown gone down to defeat before the Colonials.

At yesterday's practice, the Colonials whooped it up as they ran through plays. End Stan Burak never stopped hollering from start to finish, and the enthusiasm was contagious.

Three G. W. "cripples" who have been out with injuries for most of the season, were on hand yesterday. Quarterback Art Kennedy, Tailback Bob Mazero and Center Don Drueckmiller are all determined to be in shape for this one.

The Colonials' pepper-pot line coach, Rog Antaya, had this to say: "Beat Georgetown? Sure we can beat them. It's all up to the boys. If they feel like playing the football they are capable of, they can do the trick."

On the George Washington campus, spirit is running high, too. Pretty Barbara Miller, a freshman whose dad, Dr. Beveridge Miller, used to play football for G. W., and whose brother was a member of last year's team, would like nothing better than to see a victory over Georgetown.

"We've got the spirit to do it," Barbara smiled, "and I think that the boys are capable of beating Georgetown. We're giving

The Amazing Cards Are Coming Here

By Bill Burnett

There's some doubt they'll be out to see the Redskins, hardly a drawing card after five straight lunkings, but a capacity crowd of approximately 36,591 (that being the number of seats available) is almost certain to be at Griffith Stadium this Sunday afternoon.

The fabulous Chicago Cardinals are coming to town.

It's Trippi and Crew

They'll want to see Charley Trippi and the Cards' "dream backfield" which includes Paul Christman, Marshall Goldberg and Pat Harder, and a terrific line which, all in one year, has helped to raise a hopeless Chicago team, titleless for 26 years, to a leading contender for the championship won last year by their intractable rivals, the Bears.

Trippi, used sparingly last week because of a damaged foot, is back

In shape and the former All-America scooter may furnish as much trouble as Christman and his passes.

Georgia's favorite, from Pittsboro, Pa., in spite of his enforced idleness has hung up a record of exactly 5 yards a trip with the ball, carrying 51 times for 256 yards in his first year of pro football.

Christman Second in Passing

Against Sammy Baugh's aerial artistry the Cardinals, in Nat Shortstop Mark Christman's brother, boast the West's second best passer with a percentage of 47.3. Harder, Goldberg and Elmer Angsman will provide Trippi all the ball-carrying help he needs. Harder is the West's second high scorer with 59 points and Angsman has a 4.2-yard average in rushing.

With a record of 7 won and 1 lost, the Cards are nursing a one-game edge on the Bears in their section. After Washington, they face New York, Philadelphia and the Bears. The Bears' schedule calls for windup games with Pittsburgh, Detroit and Los Angeles besides the finale for the Chicago city crown.

The Cardinals come here fresh from a game they think indicative of their real strength. They tripped Green Bay, 21-20, after trailing by a 20-7 score going into the final period.

"That isn't luck," says publicist Eddie McGuire, "that's the stuff champions are made of." Only Cardinal out of action with injuries is Guard Buster Ramsey, the William and Mary great whose twisted leg is in a cast. Center Bill Campbell may play for the first time since training season. Triple-threat Trippi has thrown exactly one pass this season, good for 50 yards. Redskin gloating about ends impresses the Cards not at all. They've got two middlin' ends of their own, Bill Dewell and Malcolm Kutner, who rate second and third in western division pass-catching.

Two temporary Washingtonians at Sunday's game will have more than a little interest in proceedings. They're Charles "Stormy" Bidwell, 19-year-old Georgetown student of diplomacy and swiping Villanova wildcats, and Georgetown Prep's Fullback Billy Bidwell. They fall in line for ownership of the Cardinal club their late father developed.

will play for us next Friday. We held them to a 0-0 tie. With 10 seconds more, we'd have won that one, for if you remember, we had a first down on the Tech 2 as the game ended.

Leathery Called Best

"What I'm building up to is that whereas the Tech team of 1947 is made up almost entirely of the same bunch that we tied last year, we have most the same crew plus—and a big plus it is—our fullback, Dale Leathery, whom I consider the best line-bucker in the city, and our speedy halfback, Jimmy Pantos, who is one of the best in the open field. Both Leathery and Pantos are new.

"Now, don't get me wrong. I'm not trying to kid anybody. While I don't think we'll lose, neither do I believe that we'll walk all over Tech. Coach Ed Solomon has one of the finest high school aggregations of all-time over at Tech. They're tough," the Central coach admitted.

Civilian Grid Coach for Navy Urged in Annapolis Editorial

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 18 (AP).—A proposal to change the football coaching system at the Naval Academy is something officials there would rather not talk about.

Comment was refused today on an editorial in the Annapolis Evening Capital advocating a change in the system of using officers as coaches, usually in three-year duty tours.

The Evening Capital asked the change "to give the players and the coaches at least an even break in competition in the future."

"Any person familiar with the records of Navy football teams the last few years realizes that some change is essential in the coaching system, specially if Navy is to continue to meet the after week."

"To continue the present system, under which the Midshipmen, although fighting splendidly, are beaten and mauled weekend after weekend, is simply tossing the players to the lions for the amusement of crowded stadiums."

The newspaper said it was not critical of Capt. Tom Hamilton, Navy's present coach, under whom Navy won one game last year—with Villanova—defeated Cornell this year, tied Duke and lost the rest.

It added, "In these days, when football is big business, coaching is a profession, and it is not fair to expect a man to be an efficient naval officer and at the same time be an efficient football coach. Each is a career in itself."

Bowling

BURR HEISHMAN and Mann's Potato Chips, tied with 17 victories and 13 defeats for the lead in the Men's Major District Bowling League, will clash tonight in the circuit's feature attraction, with Rosslyn alleys the scene.

Al Wright, winner of the recent Robinson-McGraw Classic in Baltimore, and Cletus Pennell, the District's number one duckpin, are due for work-outs against a Mann's team which boasts such aces as Bob Micotto and Hokie Smith.

Winn's Motors, with Howard Parsons and Paul Jarman, who the other evening set a season's mark of 199 at Rosslyn, setting a hot pace, will tackle Maple Edge Pins at King Pin; Winchester Motors will roll Heurich at Greenway and Gallier and Hugely will oppose Arcade Pontiac at Hi-Skor.

EVELYN NICKEL, of the league-leading King Pin team, is pacing the Ladies' District Major League with a 116.13 average, with Lorraine Gull, Hi-Skor captain, next with 116.4. The feminine stars tonight will be shooting to break Frances Johnson's 178 high game mark set last week, and Jesse Sacrey's 402 set.

King Pin will play at Brookland, second place College Park will go host to Lafayette, Rosslyn will be at Mount Rainier and Hi-Skor at Ice Palace.

GREENWAY, still leading the Men's Minor District League, will be at home to Temple tonight. Other scraps show Ice Palace at Queen Pin, Alexandria at Spillway, Petworth No. 2 at Clarendon, Lucky Strike at Colonial Village and Arcadia at Petworth No. 1.

BILL DUVAL seems to have a monopoly on the one-ball tournaments at Petworth alleys. For the third straight week Duval took down first prize, winning this time with 247. Joe Rhodes, with 245; Jim Grayson, 239; Crallie Rickard, 238; Red Dietrich, 234, and Bob Chalfone, with an 86 game, were other winners. Rhodes took an additional $50 for rolling an 86.

TEMPLE GIRLS, with 21 victories and 6 defeats, and a total pinfall of 14,131, are leading the Ladies' Minor District League which also sees action tonight on three fronts.

HARRY BLUMENTHAL rolled his third 400 set of the season—a 406—to boost his average to 122.16 in the Hebrew League at Penn Recreation. But his Schneider's team lost to Ehrlich, 2-1. Mitchell's is leading the league by one game.

Touchdown Club Honors Sam Baugh

Sammy Baugh Day at Griffith Stadium Sunday will get Touchdown Club members off to an early start this weekend.

The Club President Les Arries will present the Redskins passing ace with a 1948 Packard station wagon in Baugh Day ceremonies before the Redskins-Chicago Cardinal National Professional Football game.

On Monday at noon the Touchdown Club will sponsor its third major monthly luncheon in the Presidential Ballroom of the Hotel Statler when it honors the Naval Academy football coaching staff.

Janney Turns Down Harness Application

Baltimore, Nov. 18 (AP).—Chairman Stuart S. Janney, Jr., of the Maryland Racing Commission told counsel for Baltimore Trotting Races, Inc., today that denial of its license application was the commission's "final decision."

Janney said the granting of harness racing licenses to three other applicants in the State was the final decision on such licenses for 1948, "in order that there may be no misunderstanding on this point."

Jake Makes Fight Verdict Unanimous

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—Jake LaMotta, Bronx middleweight, who was stopped by Billy Fox in the fourth round in Madison Square Garden Friday night, said today: "I did the best I could" and challenged "anybody" to prove that "I lost on purpose."

LaMotta made the statements in an interview with Lester Bromberg, boxing writer for the World-Telegram.

The fight is being investigated by both the district attorney and Chairman Eddie Egan of the State Athletic Commission.

Here are some excerpts from the interview:

Q.—What did you think of your performance?

Cyo Willing To Talk Over Durocher Case

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Rev. Vincent J. Powell, director of the Brooklyn Catholic Youth Organization, said today the CYO is the "pressure group" involved in the Leo Durocher-Brooklyn Dodgers situation and offered to sit down and talk over the matter with President Rickey of the Dodgers at any time.

"Mr. Rickey has indicated that there are pressure groups interested in seeing Durocher remain out of baseball," Father Powell said in an interview. "I won't double talk. We are the group in question. We haven't had any conference with Rickey or the Brooklyn club recently and will not make any attempt in that direction."

"Our office is only three blocks from that of the Dodgers and Mr. Rickey knows where we are, if he cares to get in touch with us."

Father Powell said his group would make no move until Rickey named the 1948 manager of the Dodgers.

Q.—He hit me a good punch in the left side early in the first round. It gave me a shock but the thing paralyzed me kind of gradually and I didn't really feel it until between rounds.

Q.—Was that the first time you felt it?

A.—No, I got hit and hurt on that side in the gym a month before the fight, October 14. One of the two guys boxing with me, Clarence Wilkinson or Tony Mascarella, must have done it. Like in the fight, I finished the round but when I got to the dressing room door I got weak and I would have fallen over if Pop Joey (his brother) hadn't held me up. I was full of cold sweat.

Q.—Then what?

A.—They took me to the doctor. He taped me up and sent me to be X-rayed, after a look in the fluorescent showed nothing. The X-rays didn't show any break. I thought I had a broken rib. But the doctor said it was a clot of the spleen, that I shouldn't box. Q.—Did you follow that advice?

A.—For two days I stood in bed. Q.—Didn't you think of asking for a postponement?

A.—Yes, but I pulled out of that Lyle match because of bad hands and I didn't want to do it again because people might think I was yellow. And the fight was still three weeks away.

Q.—What made you resume training?

A.—Well, I floated around the house and felt pretty good, so I tried doing roadwork. I jogged hard but had no pain; with two weeks to go, I went back into the gym.

Q.—What did the doctor say when he found out?

A.—He said I was taking foolish risks, something bad might happen if I boxed; but I told you I felt all right. I thought I knew my own condition better than him, even if he was a doctor.

Q.—Were you in need of cash before the fight?

A.—I did get income enough from my investments to support me and my family for the rest of my life.

Q.—Did you know what happened with the price?

A.—I heard it went to 12 to 5. Fox. If somebody had offered to lay it to me, I'd have bet my entire purse.

Q.—Do you feel you're in the clear?

A.—Yes. They can't prove that I lost on purpose. When it's all over, everybody will know I told the truth.

Greenbelt Wins Soccer Crown

Greenbelt High School captured the Class B Maryland County soccer championship yesterday. Greenbelt and Bel Air High played to a 2-2 deadlock in a game that went two overtime periods here. But because of a ruling in county scholastic soccer competition, Greenbelt was declared the winner because it had more corner kicks. In that department, Bel Air had but one while Greenbelt had six.

Quake Rocks City Hall in Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Nov. 18 (AP).—A gently rocking, moderately severe earthquake was felt in Los Angeles and along the northern seacoast of southern California today. There were no immediate reports of damage.

Dr. Charles F. Richter of California Institute of Technology described it as "good-sized local shock." He timed it at 1:59 p. m. (Pacific Standard Time, 4:59 p. m. EST.).

It was felt in Santa Barbara, Redondo Beach and Hermosa Beach, but apparently did not extend south or east.

Downtown Los Angeles buildings, including the towering city hall, swayed noticeably.

Williamington and San Pedro, in Los Angeles Harbor, felt the shock and there were indications it extended in a band to the west and north. It was noted in Hollywood as moderately heavy.

Sartira Shudders As Witness Handles Mee Death Gun

Havana, Nov. 18 (AP).—Patricia Schmidt, the Toledo, Ohio dancer, shuddered and turned her head away today as a witness in her trial for the slaying of John Lester Mee, who was wounded fatally aboard his yacht in Havana Harbor last April.

The witness, Gabriel Vega, an expert in the National Identification Bureau, testified it was entirely possible a person under emotional stress might fire the weapon accidentally.

Drs. Ruben Velasco and Evilio Canizares, testified today that a letter written by Mee indicated he could have been sexually abnormal.

Asked if scratches and bruises on Patricia's body could have resulted from a brutal attack by Mee, the doctors replied that apparently any attack she may have suffered was not brutal.

Liquor Dealer Fined For Selling Too Cheap

Baltimore, Nov. 18 (AP).—About a year ago a nationally known distillery (Hiram Walker, Inc.) complained in court that liquor dealer Isaiah M. Kidwell was selling whisky two cents cheaper than the fair trade price. The court issued an injunction order, and Kidwell promised to mend his ways.

Yesterday he was fined $150 and costs on a contempt of court charge because he was selling whisky 56 cents too cheap.

Charity Cases Hospital Cites Losses On Fairfax

Arlington Hospital Administrator Karl H. York yesterday said he plans next week to ask Fairfax County for more pay for that county's charity patients being cared for by the hospital.

In a report on the hospital's finances, York said the institution has lost $49,979 on charity patients and had debts so far this year, an 86 per cent increase in such losses over that of 1946.

Sixty per cent of the load of charity patients, he said, comes to the hospital from Fairfax County, which has declined, he said, to pay more than the $5 per day per patient set by the Community Chest.

According to York, each charity patient costs $15.48.

York said he planned to confer "some time next week" with members of the Fairfax board of supervisors and with the county's department of welfare officials.

He said Arlington County now pays the full cost of the indigent patients it sends to the hospital.

In addition to Fairfax charity patients, York said Arlington Hospital is losing money on Blue Cross and Community Chest patients "for whose bills the hospital is only partially reimbursed."

Members Hit Zoning Board Nomination

Two members of the Falls Church Planning Commission and one member of the town council yesterday criticized the town council's action in endorsing a contractor for a vacancy on the town's board of zoning appeals.

The criticism came from Chairman Edward Knouse and Samuel Dennis of the planning commission and Councilman J. H. McCarthy.

The name of Augustus Wedderburn, a local contractor, and that of Attorney William Hix were to be submitted to Fairfax Circuit Court Judge Paul E. Brown this morning as the town council's recommendations for the two zoning board posts.

Judge Brown has until Thursday to name the new members to fill the posts of J. O. Martin and Mrs. Sarah Brown, both of whom have announced they will not seek reappointment.

Selection of a contractor for the zoning post "would establish a poor precedent," Councilman McCarthy said. He added he didn't feel a man should be appointed "who might be forced to pass on his own contracting work, or that of his competitors."

Speaking highly of Wedderburn's reputation, Mayor Fenner Hazelgrove during Monday's town council meeting said zoning board membership "should be determined by a man's character, not his vocation." Names of both Wedderburn and Hix originally were suggested by Hazelgrove.

The mayor then criticized Planning Commission Chairman Knouse for that group's endorsement of two other zoning board candidates, businessman Albert Orme and Department of Agriculture employee Franklin Thackeray.

According to Hazelgrove, it was "poor policy for the commission to attempt to control the Board of Zoning Appeals which is supposed to be independent."

In Fairfax W. F. Gooding Elected by Democrats

W. Franklin Gooding, 30-year-old deputy clerk of the Fairfax Circuit Court, last night was elected chairman of the Fairfax County Democratic Executive Committee.

His election was unanimous at the biennial convention of the committee at the Fairfax Courthouse.

He succeeds George B. Robey, who had held the office for eight years and was not a candidate for reelection.

A resident of Vienna, Gooding has served as deputy clerk of the court since 1940.

Other officers elected for the committee include: Franklin S. Gicker of McLean, vice chairman; John R. Eakin of Falls Church, secretary; and Francis Jones of Arlington, treasurer.

The officers were elected by 49 members of the executive committee, which itself was elected earlier in the evening by county committee members from the 26 county voting precincts.

3 Court Hearing Called in Vepco Power Line Plan

The controversial power line Virginia Electric & Power Co. proposes to erect in Fairfax County will be subject of three separate hearings in the Fairfax County Circuit Court during the coming month.

The hearings are: (1) a condemnation hearing Monday through Thursday of next week on land needed for the line's right of way; (2) the hearing on December 3 on petitions from five landowners for injunctions against the line construction on grounds Vepco has violated the county zoning ordinance by starting construction without a county use permit; and (3) appeal from Fairfax County police of zoning law violation charges on which Vepco was convicted last month.

Remobilizing 'TITA'

The Cast Would Cost More Now

By Richard L. Coe

LET ANYONE FROM "This Is the Army" come through town and this "TITA" fan is on them like a leech.

Latest is Ralph Magelsen, the baritone who's singing Edvard Grieg in the National's "Song of Norway." Corporal Magelsen played the captain who started things off in the Irving Berlin musical and later in the show sang "Mandy," that minstrel number in which Gene Kelly's brother, Fred, and Dick Irving danced so amusingly.

Grieg is a far different role, but Magelsen is used to operetta leads. He began as a concert artist under Alexander Smallens and then went into such light opera hits as "The Great Waltz," "Three Waltzes," and "La Vie Parisienne." Appropriately enough for "Song of Norway," he's a Minnesota chap of Norwegian stock—the only real Norwegian in Edwin Lester's production.

This reporter first met the "TITA" detachment (to give it its Army name) on a Stars and Stripes assignment. It was a hot July afternoon at the great pyramids of Egypt. The show stayed around Cairo for about a month and we spent a lot of time with it.

So, inevitably, talk with Magelsen turned on Irving Berlin's remarkable show, its fabulous travels and the people in it. Ezra Stone, radio's Henry Aldrich, has written a book of its Stateside adventures, but no one has covered its two-year globe circling (Aldrich and 149 of the original group of 300 didn't go overseas).

A Superb Ambassador

What a show that was, a remarkable ambassador to Yanks away from home and to the foreigners who were lucky enough to see it. Besides playing to the troops, the Army show played occasional benefits for Army Relief, the Red Cross and, to King Farouk of Egypt, for the Moslem equivalent, the Red Crescent.

It was a show that only could have happened under Uncle Sam's Army. Irving Berlin bent over backward not to seek favoritism in the way of ratings. No producer today could cast such an aggregation—let alone lug them on a world tour. Still, it wouldn't hurt international relations.

To get Milton Rosenstock back to his job of leading the orchestra you'd have to take him from his juicy job as conductor of "Finian's Rainbow." To stage the dances, you'd have to pry Bob Sidney away from his new assignment for Rita Hayworth's "Carmen" and Maurice Kelly from his dance direction of the Dallas Starlight Operas.

You'd have to get Gene Nelson, whom you last saw dancing with Rita Hayworth in "Down to Earth," away from Columbia and back to his TITA name, Gene Berg. And you'd have to get Max Showalter from "John Loves Mary" and Alan Manson from "Call Me Mister." And you'd have to pry Stuart Churchill from Fred Waring's show and Bob Shanley from radio.

Even the National's next one, "The Firefly," would be affected. That "Ladies of the Chorus" number wouldn't be right without

NOT SO LOST MOMENT: Robert Cummings and Susan Hayward of "The Lost Moment," Walter Wanger's film from the Henry James novel, "The Aspern Papers," which opens tomorrow on the Capitol screen.

TOMORROW: Richard L. Coe meets a man who tells the movie stars what the heavenly stars have in store for them.

Compton, Wright Get Medals

Medals for scientific achievement were awarded Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Prof. Sewall Wright of the University of Chicago here last night. The awards were presented at a dinner of the National Academy of Sciences in the Hotel Washington.

Dr. Compton was awarded the Marcellus Hartley Medal for 1947 for "eminence in the application of science to the public welfare." The academy said Dr. Compton was being honored "because of his notable contributions of an original character to the science of physics, his long and valuable career in the field of education and university administration, and in recognition of his eminent service in the wartime research effort of the nation, and in the reinforcement of collaboration and understanding between civilian scientists and military men."

Dr. Compton was chief of the Office of Field Service of the Office of Scientific Research and Development during the war.

Professor Wright was awarded the Daniel Giraud Elliot Medal for 1945 for "his fundamental work dealing with the genetics of evolutionary processes." In the presentation address, it was explained that Professor Wright "has developed the modern mathematical theory of biological evolution" in a series of papers published during the past 25 years and particularly since 1931.

"The brilliant synthesis reached by Professor Wright," said the Academy, "makes him the outstanding living evolutionist and the father of the modern neo-Darwinism, which, indeed, could be justly called the Wrightian version of Darwinism."

Some victims jumped or fell from the top of the partially wood structure.

Firemen made several spectacular rescues before the store's interior collapsed. Workers recovered 28 bodies, mostly from pileups in doorways. The twenty-ninth victim died in a hospital.

Eyewitnesses said other bodies could be seen hanging across scorched rafters and in the debris.

WHITE cotton "shortie" gloves are precious Christmas gifts. Woodward & Lothrop has an attractive selection, priced at $3.50 and $4.50 per pair.

By Peggy Preston

WHILE Congress is tackling the problem of the higher-cost-of-living, let's try to solve the higher-cost-of-giving this Christmas.

Most of us are going to have to skimp on presents this year—we are, that is, if we intend to keep that battened old family budget intact. Yet, there are certain gifts that must be given, persons whom we don't want to forget no matter what the condition of our pocketbook.

So, in the interest of finding effective, yet inexpensive gifts, we went on a prolonged shopping tour. In general we stayed within the $5 limit and sought articles that are luxurious enough for a gift, practical enough to have real value to those who receive them.

Also, on this occasion, we confined our findings to purely feminine gifts. Men, reactionary creatures that they are, can generally tell you exactly what they want from one Christmas to the next—more of the same. So, for the time being we're leaving them out of it and concentrating on the distaff side of the picture.

Statistics show that in the gift bracket perfume and cosmetics are dearest of all to the feminine heart. Therefore, our gift list opens with an account of what we consider the most attractive buys on the cosmetic counters this season.

You're in for a delightful experience when you go shopping for these items this year. In the first place the packaging is prettier than it ever has been. And, in not a few instances, the prices are a little lower than formerly.

Let's begin with Elizabeth Arden, whose products are sold at Woodward & Lothrop and other department stores in town, as well as at her shop on Connecticut ave. She offers the following:

A bottle of toilet water packaged in a frosty snowman for $2.74; two frosty bells holding drum bottles of perfume, tied together and nestled in transparent wrapping paper, packaged in a plastic box. Take the bells out and hang them on the tree as a surprise for mother, $4.50.

Large plastic ball with Christmas decorations and inside a small bottle of perfume with atomizer. This too, for the tree, at $5. One dram of Blue Grass perfume in a jolly little Christmas stocking for $2.25 would make a cute favor for a Christmas bridge party.

Helena Rubinstein has the only completely new perfume on the market this year. It is called "Command Performance," is made in France and makes an ideal gift. A dram is priced at $2, and there is a handsome gift size in an attractive cut glass container for $6.75. Miss Rubinstein also has a lovely compact-lipstick combination in black metal with heavy border design of gold-colored metal. For $5 it makes a pretty gift. These items are available at Jelleff's and other department stores and at the Rubinstein shop on Connecticut ave.

The firm of Prince Matchabelli has some darling little hat boxes containing miniature perfume bottles.

Cosmetic Counters Offer Luxury-at-a-Price

The tiny boxes are pierced with hat pins and cost only $3. Another novel item is a gold metal bell, tied with red ribbon which would look wonderful on a tree, or could be used for a dinner bell. Tucked inside are perfume bottles. Priced at $1.75 and $4.50. Sold at all leading department stores.

Mary Chess, a favorite with discriminating women, sells her products at local department stores and also has a shop on Connecticut ave. Aside from her cosmetics, of which she has many special gift items, she offers some ultra feminine sachet articles that make attractive presents. Such fragrances as White Lilac, Gardenia, Carnation and Tapestry are matched in peach, blue and green satin containers to form shoulder covers which snap on hangers or peck flap for traveling. Priced at $3.50. Lace trimmed sachet pillow at $3.50; sachet pillow with everlasting flower bouquet for $3.25.

Biggest note in fashion news this season for the woman with a small budget is the blouse and skirt idea. It harks back to the Gibson Girl era when to the address you give. There are eight different packages, priced from $3 up.

A handy gift for almost anyone you know are dish towels, made of an asbestos cloth which dries quickly, leaves no tattle-tale lint on glasses. Three to a box for $2.64. Mother-daughter apron sets of organdie with chintz borders; mother's $1.99, daughter's $1.69. A choice gift for friends who can knit are the Argyle Sock Packs, containing sufficient vari-colored yarns for one pair of socks, $1.85.

At Kann's: Almost anyone in your family (yourself included) have old photographs of loved ones which are faded and dimmed. Miss Betty Grimsey, visiting at this store this week, can show you how to have these heirlooms restored or copied. Once restored they can be framed, given as rare gifts to families or friends. Price, according to type and size of picture.

At Brooks Specialty Shop: Who among us doesn't fancy the theme of Prince Elizabeth's wedding? Among gift items offered at this store is a scarf of blue and gold, encircled with the royal coat-of-arms of the Princess. It is a 36-inch square of pure silk and sells for $4.00.

GIBSON GIRL blouses are popular gifts this season. Stores are now well stocked and you can make your choice from a wide variety of styles and colors. This one, of white or pastel cotton, is at Hecht's.

women were first leaving the home for offices demurely clad in a long, full skirt, wide belt and crisp, starched blouse.

Well, we haven't come such a long way after all. We're ga-ga about the same notion this year. So what could be nicer than presenting your best pal, daughter, or even mama herself with a nifty blouse—a la Gibson Girl.

We saw some at Hecht's that you might like. They have a white cotton broadcloth with a tucked front for $5.95 that is a honey and there are some rayon fabrics in white with pin stripes and white collar for $4.95. These come in blue, green and rose stripes.

Also at Hecht's: A "Mighty Midget" wallet which takes care of everything except the toothbrush. It's a combination wallet-cigarette case-lipstick-key-ring and change purse. Comes in red or green leather for $3.60. Autobridge, a game which allows you to play bridge by yourself. Good for convalescents or shut-ins. $4.00 table size; $3.00 pocket size.

At Lansburgh's: A delightful gift for a doting grandma is the picture you can get of junior sitting on Santa's knee. A cameraman, armed with a special super-speed automatic camera is hiding on the sidelines, catches your little one in a completely natural pose. You can get an 8 by 10-inch print in a folder for $1.00.

For a good friend in the frozen north a Chest of Gold, filled with citrus fruits, ordered at the store, but packaged in Florida and sent direct from there

There is also an unusual value in a brunch coat. It is of cotton seersucker, an innovation for winter wear but perfect in our steam-heated apartments. Comes in blue, maize and red flower print on neutral background. Misses sizes for $5.00.

For some of your friends you'll undoubtedly like to select stockings in the sultry, dark colors such as "black beauty." At this store you'll find some extra sheer models for $2.40 per pair, designed especially for evening wear and special occasions.

Now, if you have a special friend, who appreciates small, yet exquisite gifts you will be looking for articles of this type. We found some real gems at Garfunkel's which you might want to look over.

For instance: Petite pill boxes of gold metal with tiny designs on the lids. Some square, others oblong or heart-shaped for $2.00 . . . miniature compacts, shell-shaped for $3.95 . . . perfume containers with rhinestone trim for $5.00 . . . mirror and lipstick, nice for dressing table or purse for around $3.00.

Barrette with gold band, $1.00; with rhinestone band for evening, $3.75. Handkerchief case in peach and eggshell satin with lace trim, $4.50 . . . two-piece set in pink satin for $5.00.

And speaking of handkerchiefs, who do you know who doesn't adore one that is fragile and beautiful. Most of the good ones on the market now are imported. You can get them initialed or plain, with or without embroidery or lace. At this same store we looked over a wide and varied stock. They ranged in price from $1 to $5 each and all seemed equally lovely.

HELENA RUBINSTEIN's new French fragrance, "Command Performance," is a sophisticated gift. Available at Jelleff's and other leading department stores, priced at $2.00 for one dram; $6.75 for half-ounce.

Flurry in Flag Designing Creates Bright Banners for Forrestal and Symington

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

SINCE THE NEW defense setup there has been a lively flurry in flag designing. Most recent creations are banners for such top ranking officials as Secretary of Defense Forrestal and Secretary for Air Symington.

Flag designing can't be tossed off lightly. Color, choice and juxtaposition of symbols, all-over effect have to be carefully thought out. Then, the ultimate recipient, plus kibitzing friends, have to be pleased.

To solve these problems the Army's Quartermaster General's office maintains a Heraldic section which is presided over by civilian-status George du Bois. Mr. du Bois studied symbols as every tiny doo-dab on a flag has a meaning and, it seems, several distinctive names!

Secretary of Defense Forrestal's flag has a "medium" blue field (it's slightly brighter than the Congressional Medal of Honor ribbon) centered with an eagle in "proper" (i.e. natural) color but posed more dramatically than the bird of the United States shield. He holds in his claws three arrows representing the armed services, Army, Navy, Air. There's a star in each corner, insignia, representing Mr. Forrestal's civilian appointive position.

Secretary Symington's private flag, though still subject to last-minute changes, will have a dark blue background similar to the blue in our national banner. In the center there'll be the familiar aviation shoulder insignia, blue background, white star with a red disc and golden wings. There is a slight variation, though, as the wings are spread differently. And, of course, there is a star in each corner.

Those fortunate enough to catch a glimpse of General Eisenhower or one of our other five-star generals may have noticed their unusual insignia of grade. It was designed when Secretary of State Marshall was Chief of Staff. It consists of a circle of five silver stars topped with the coat-of-arms of the United States in gold and enamel.

Secretary Forrestal's Flag

a hobby, became so knowledgeable that back in 1920, after two years' Government service, he was assigned to the Heraldic section. Government service flags (the Navy, by the way, figures out its own) and every shoulder insignia passes over his desk for approval. The individual flags are woven of an extra fine, extra tough material called banner silk. They are made in an Army depot in Philadelphia. Shoulder insignia, which are designed either in a unit or in Mr. du Bois' office, are processed through Philadelphia, then their manufacture "let out" to competing concerns.

Heraldry Has Own Language

HERALDRY HAS its own very special vocabulary, and, after such long dealing in symbols, Mr. du Bois' conversation sometimes takes on an Elizabethan tinge. For instance, in many flags a disc is used as background for a seal or other insignia.

If you speak of discs in general, they are roundies; if it is a particular disc, it is a plate. A gold disc is called a besant; a black one is a pellet; red, a torteau; blue, a hurt; purple, a golpe; green, a pomme.

Ordinary colors have special names, too, and

Following Yen to Travel

LATEST SOCIALITE to delve in the marts of L trade is gay, curly-headed Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer. She is Washington representative of the Haley Corp. Travel Service of New York and San Francisco, which will soon open a K street office.

Mrs. P. will fix you up with a cruise, a trip to the Olympic games or a whizz over Sun Valley's snows. She comes naturally by her yen for travel because, an only child, she commuted to and fro from Europe with her father, the late William A. Fallon, who was in the shipping business. A New Yorker, she was first married to John B. Burrall of Waterbury, Conn., and four years after his death married A. Mitchell Palmer, who served for many years as United States Attorney General.

Pooches and Things

IF YOU see a big, red bloodhound sniffing around Georgetown, don't imagine the FBI are man hunting. It's just "Duke," the State Department's Jim Hendrick's prize pooch . . . SWINK, the super-duper policy coordinating committee, had to change initials when the new defense setup included air. Now it's the SANACC (State, Army, Navy, Air Coordinating Committee) and among the ivory tower boys there's a new slogan, "Snap back with San-ak."

Tomorrow's Peace Plate

A meat dish that embraces good eating and economy is pan-fried liver, suggested for tomorrow's Peace Plate by Citizens Food Committee. To serve with it the menu is:

Fried Onions Well-seasoned Canned Corn
Pan Fried Liver Deep Dish Orange Pie
Cole Slaw (Beef, Lamb or Calves)

Have liver sliced 1/4-inch thick and allow 1/4-pound for each serving. Wipe with damp cloth and dry, then remove outside skin and tubes if any. Dredge with flour (seasoned with salt and pepper), or dip first in milk and then dredge with flour. Fry in hot fat in skillet, about 5 to 8 minutes, depending upon individual taste, turning occasionally until well browned. Serve with or without bacon. Bacon drippings, butter, fortified margarine, salad oil, or any shortening may be used for pan-frying liver.

Your Questions on Homemaking

Is there any way to restore the glare on chintz after cleaning or washing? If so, what is the best method? L. V. R.

Some chintz is permanently finished, but when it isn't and the glare washes or dry cleans out, there's really no way to restore it. You can improve the appearance of the chintz, however, by using a heavy starch with paraffin added. Add about two teaspoons of melted paraffin to one quart of hot starch and mix it in well. After washing the chintz, starch it with this mixture and just before it dries, iron with a hot iron.

W. S. R. has written to ask if any readers have odd pieces of "Loveless," a discontinued 1847 Rogers pattern. E. B. If any readers have extra pieces of this china they would like to sell, they are invited to contact this column.

Some time ago I spilled turpentine in which I had been cleaning brushes (used in black paint) on my kitchen linoleum. I have removed most of it with ordinary powdered cleanser, but a pale stain remains and has filled the small scratches in the floor. Is there any way this can be removed? A. P. M.

One of the special linoleum cleaners, sold by linoleum companies and in hardware stores, may be effective in removing this spot from your floor. These cleaners are generally recommended for refurbishing very dirty linoleum.

I have searched unsuccessfully for plain metal or wooden serving trays which I wish to decorate for Christmas gifts. Can you help me locate them? M. S. M.

I do not know of any place in Washington where such trays may be bought, but I understand that Gimbel's in New York has the metal ones if you wish to order them. Of course, many stores here—including some of the Se-and 10c stores—have painted trays that could be repainted and decorated with your own designs.

I have a piece of furniture I would like to refinish in the Pennsylvania Dutch style. What would be the best type of finish to use to provide an attractive base for the designs? M. H.

An "undercoater"—either white or tinted with oil paint—can be used in painting furniture before applying Pennsylvania Dutch designs. Or, if you want a dark or bright color, use enamel paint in the desired color over the undercoater. After the designs have been painted on and dried, many people give the furniture an "antique" finish with raw umber or raw sienna, mixed with turpentine and a little varnish. Use 3 tablespoons turpentine to 1 tablespoon clear varnish and 1 1/2 teaspoons of umber or sienna. (The latter gives a redder tone.) Brush this preparation over the surface, then partially wipe off with a piece of clean cloth. Do only one panel or section at a time so the finish won't dry too fast. After it's thoroughly dry, a coat of varnish (dull or glossy) can be applied to seal it in. Incidentally, an interesting booklet on redecorating furniture with Pennsylvania Dutch designs is obtainable in some of the stores handling DuPont paints.

I was pleased to see the list of "the month" clubs you had in your column the other day. I happen to know of one that wasn't listed. Perhaps you and "J. P." may be interested in hearing about it. It is the "Lake Pan" Club. Apparently only a lucky few know about it. I, being one, am the recipient of the most delectable Lake Superior trout right out of that icy cold lake. It comes packed in ice (distributed only in cool weather, of course). Orders are sent to the Herbster Merchandise Mart, Herbster, Wisc., attention Mr. Erwin De Gicanto. A. K.

Fall Foliage Comes Indoors

Home bouquets of lasting beauty are still available even though your summer garden has gone to seed. Abundant fall foliage in delicate patterns and riotous colors is yours for the taking on country roads or even in your own yard, according to an article in the November issue of Good Housekeeping magazine.

"Dried and waxed, the leaves and grasses take to large containers such as pitchers and tureens," the article states in part. "They last weeks, even months."

Some of the more attractive lasting bouquets can be made from tall marsh grasses, gold-colored duchess lace and a handful of cattails in a painted cookie jar; soft green ferns against shiny dark rhododendrons in a brass bucket.

Excellent service is given by a modern form of floor finish known as a "penetrating seal." Such seals, which are sold under different trade names, penetrate the wood instead of lying on the surface. These seals are applied to the bare wood. For best results, the floor should be prepared with a sanding machine. At any rate, it should be just as clean as you can possibly get it before the finish is applied.

Another finish you might use is varnish, which gives quite a high gloss. What is known as floor varnish should be used, this being harder and more resistant to wear than other varieties. Three coats are advisable.

My stainless steel knives seem to be getting some pitted spots on their surface. Do you know what caused this? W. N.

Mrs. Truman Attends Bazaar at French Embassy

The holiday season got off to a gay start yesterday at the bazaar held by American Aid to France at the French Embassy. Several hundred shoppers milled around the booths from 11 a. m. to 7 p. m. There were huge yellow and orange chrysanthemums on the buffet table in the dining room and on the side were decorative bunches of white chrysanthemums mixed with white roses.

Mrs. Truman arrived a little after 3 o'clock, and was met at the door by Mme. Bonnet. The two were immediately photographed by a score of cameras, and then Mme. Bonnet took Mrs. Truman on tour of the bazaar. The First Lady wore a black suit with pale blue feathered hat, and the Ambassador's wife wore a striking Dior gown, tightly fitted in the bodice and skirt, and flared from the knees down.

In charge of the different booths were Mme. Francois Charles-Roux, Mme. Jean Baube and Mme. Pierre Dupont, wives of embassy staff members, and Mme. Max Rainguet, widow of the Free French Chancellor. An especially hard-working contributor to the bazaar was pretty Miss Sophie Mayer, niece of Mme. Bonnet. She and her mother, Mme. Julie Mayer of Lucerne, Switzerland, are visiting at the embassy.

Mme. Bonnet has had her time fully occupied for the past several days. She has just returned from a ride on the Friendship Train, which she boarded at midnight Sunday at Harrisburg, Pa., and the next morning from 6 o'clock on, the train passed through a series of towns, stopping for a ceremony in each one.

Mrs. George Y. Worthington, Jr., head of American Aid to France, and Mrs. Burrall Hoffman, chairman of the bazaar, were on hand at the embassy yesterday to assist throughout the day. Lunch and tea were served. There were booths of books, French prints, wonderful handmade things for children, sachets and perfumes and even gallons of French salad dressing, the latter prepared by Mrs. Russell Nicklin.

Miss Pettus Gives Luncheon Party

MRS. GUY HAWKINS of Kansas City, Mo., and Mrs. Louis J. Cahn of Los Angeles, Calif., were the guests in whose honor Miss Lucille Pettus entertained at luncheon Saturday afternoon at the Shoreham Hotel. The two visitors came to Washington to attend the Hill-Willett wedding on November 4, and they will remain until the middle of December as the house guests of Mrs. E. Jean Willett, sister of Mrs. Hawkins.

On Sunday, Mrs. Hawkins and Mrs. Cahn were feted at a dinner party given by Miss Inez White at her apartment in Kew Gardens.

Clare Potter's Casual Clothes Planned for Winter Vacations

CHARMING cruise wear and "at home" clothes by Clare Potter were shown yesterday at the Shoreham Hotel when B'nai B'rith Women, Argo held a membership tea and fashion show in the new Ballroom. Miss Potter, one of the top-flight designers of informal costumes, showed this collection a week ago in New York and sent it directly to Washington for yesterday's event. Intended for the forthcoming winter vacation season, it features such fabrics as Irish linen, cottons and sheer crepe.

Costumes ranged from taffeta bathing suits, and delightful play clothes to luxurious lounging ensembles and dance frocks. Among the outstanding items were some beautifully tailored topcoats of heavy linen in neutral and pastel shades. Natural ponce, staging a surprise return after an absence of several years, was made up in a full-skirted shirtwaist frock.

Miss Potter lives up to her reputation for effective color combinations in her latest collection. She favors neutral wheat shades, setting them off against rich blues, browns, yellows and greens. Lemon-yellow crepe is used in the colorful dinner pajama suit pictured above. The belt is of dark green taffeta with a rhinestone clasp. Articles in the show will be available at Julius Garfinckel & Co., in about three weeks.—P. F.

Man and Wife Have One Big Difference, Their Conflicting Taste in Radio Fare; She Likes Serials, Slapstick; He Likes News, Concerts

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: This is about the radio and my wife. The two are pretty close companions. During the day she hears the soap operas, when she isn't shopping or otherwise out of listening range.

Evenings, when I am home, she tunes in on the slapstick so-called comedy programs. She loves them; but these programs are torture for me.

To my mind, radio is valuable for two types of program, symphony music and the news. The balance is generally aberrant to me. However, my wife doesn't care for my preference and won't listen to these programs.

Man Shuns Home To Escape Blare

THIS is one of the few differences between us, but it is the one big difference. I suppose we could fight it out, night after night; but any concessions I might win by that method wouldn't be satisfactory to me.

Some evenings I go to the movies rather than listen to her choice of radio fare; and once I went to a hotel for the night. Often I come home late from the office, because I figure I will encounter less radio racket that way. What can be done? And is anyone right or wrong in this?

E. J.

Man Is Telling Whitewash Tale

DEAR E. J.: In my opinion, the foregoing recital is so much whitewash. You are looking for excuses to neglect your wife, and you've argued this one so often that you've come to believe it yourself. In all probability you are a dour, indifferent, uncompanionable spouse; and I daresay your wife feels lonely, misunderstood and rejected in relation to you, a stepchild of fate in her own experience, just like those heroines of soap opera to whose endless tribulations she listens with sympathetic appreciation every day, maybe in quest of a chin-up philosophy for herself.

From what you say, you are home very little. And when you are, you're on the qui vive to find pretext for popping out again, lone wolf fashion. In consequence I suppose your wife formed the habit of turning to slapstick comedy as nightly antidote to daily dol-drum, and to while away solitude, and sees no reason to turn such programs off when you do condescend to stick around occasionally, exuding disapproval.

Wants to Justify His Disloyalty

ON SURFACE reading her behavior might indicate that she is intolerably inconsiderate of your refined intelligence and household rights; but I rather think the deeper truth is that she feels she can't please you, no matter what she does—so what's the use trying?

What can be done? Face the fact that you are being dishonest; that you aren't putting your cards on the table; that you are trying to show your wife in an unfavorable light and thus plausibly justify your unstable disloyal behavior—which has its origin in your own vague neurotic discontent with the married state.

If it were true, as you imply, that you are intellectually and culturally more advanced than she, then I would remind that, after all, you chose her to be your mate; and as the presumably superior party it is your civilized obligation to compassionately bear with her naive crudity, while invoking the power of steadfast love and fine example to win her gradually to your standards.

Variety in Seasoning Is Needed

The good cook has on hand a variety of seasonings and flavorings to add zest to her cooking. It is not an extravagance as these articles last a long time and need to be replaced so seldom that the original outlay is the only cost of very tasty food. Curry, a jar of pickled capers, a bottle of kitchen bouquet and many other kinds of sauces, such as Worcestershire and tabasco, where only a drop means a tremendous difference in the flavor of the dish.

AN IRISH FIREBALL FROM DIXIE is Thomas Jefferson Kelley, 24, new manager of the Hamilton Hotel. He's a grad of Tulane University, former vice president of the Florida Securities Bureau, former owner of the Hialeah Brewing Co. Magnate Henry L. Doherty took a fancy to the genial Kelley, inducted him into the hotel in the Dubonnet business via a public relations post with the Sun and Surf Club. In New York Kelley set up a sales organization for the 12 Spencer-Taylor hotels. Right now Manager Kelley is busy mapping out fresh diversifications for the Hamilton and its Rainbow Room. On his agenda are entertainment novelties, radio shows and holiday parties.

Al Shea

"Symphony of Life" . . . The Bataan Trio will play for weekend dancing at the Sea Gull . . . Bob Stickey, pianist at the Silver Fox, has been everywhere, seen everything. As a youngster he traveled all over the country as half of a vaudeville team. Since growing up he's played at the White House for every President since Woodrow Wilson . . . Ralph Hawkins, whose band was a hot attraction at Cross Roads for a long time, has gone society, is playing regularly at the Chevy Chase and Woodmont Country Clubs and the United Nations Club.

Life is one wedding after another for Denny Calvert, maître d'hotel of Hotel 2400 Sixteenth Street. He arranges about 16 wedding parties a week, is kept so busy he hasn't had a chance to get married himself.

"I GET A KICK OUT OF YOU" should be the theme song of the

Don't disremember! It's Hal McIntyre's noted band opening at the Fiesta tonight. Besides the McIntyre dance rhythm there'll be a flock of super-special McIntyre entertainers.

THE FIRST "MISS AMERICA," who was Washington's Margaret Gorman, celebrated 22 years of happy marriage at the Cairo recently. She's the wife of realtor Victor Cahill, is still almost as slim and blondely girlish as when she paraded at the first Atlantic City beauty pageant in bathing suit and opera-length black hose. With Martha Raye sounding off almost over their table, Mr. and Mrs. Cahill didn't have a quiet anniversary party, but they and their guests seemed to be having a magnificent time.

George Berg, star of the Brown Derby in its early days, returned there last night. To be in consonance with the new elegance of the Derby, George has a fine trio for background, has promised not to sing "Chicago."

THE NEW LOOK. Olivia Davis, soigneur owner of Merry-Land, has had her last year's mink coat remodeled. It's fuller in back, has tight-cuffed balloon sleeves, looks like a million, did cost a mighty pretty penny . . . Beautiful Helen Karamoulos, owner of the Muses, is another fashion plate, but she's conservative about long skirts, wears "en just medium" . . . Louise Lee, Casino Royal singer, has a paradoxical gown with a demure fichu neckline, an undemure bare midriff, a skirt split to the knee . . . Anna Marie Shultz, pretty hostess at Michel's, has a new angle on what to do with last year's dresses. She's having a spangled number of '46 vintage chopped off above the knee—which makes it a fashionable tunic blouse.

DOUBLE ANNIVERSARY. The King Cole Room is celebrating two rather wonderful anniversaries this week. One is the eleventh birthday of the inimitable K. C. Room itself. The other marks captivating Dona Mason's first year at King Cole . . . There's a special added "zero anniversary" for Dick Koons, who's a newcomer at the spot—but good.

BANDSTANDING. "Washington Samba," frothy number just composed by Madrilian's Johnny Robb, catches the spirit of a diplomatic party. Johnny wrote both the music and lyrics, which rhyme "samba" with "ponder" amusingly . . . Pianist Rodolfo Cornejo of Cafe Caprice is now Dr. Cornejo. He's received his Ph. D. from the University of Kansas after turning a final thesis on seventeenth century philosophy . . . Singer Les Williams of the Old New Orleans has written an opera. It's called

No Wonder He's Well Liked:
Look at His Grin

M. E. R. of 2731 Ordway st. nw. suggests that we ought to say something nice about "Bus Driver Mullet" of the L-4 line, because he's so good-natured and friendly.

It's such a relief to get a letter like that, which doesn't find a blessed thing to complain about, that we'll even run the guy's picture.

To identify him more fully, he's Arndt G. Mullet, of 3511 30th. nw., whose cheerful discharge of his duties has already won him three commendations from his employers.

MICE, MEN AND KITTENS

There was a movie once in which Fred MacMurray played the part of a researcher for the "Trotter Poll." He explained:

"We do the same sort of work as the Gallup Poll, but we're not in as big a hurry."

During recent weeks I've been conducting a "Trotter Poll" on our Personal Notes and Give-Aways items. I asked whether readers wanted them continued or eliminated.

The results is that both types of items will remain. E. P. Ament wrote, "Throw out the Personal Notes," but Laura K. Pollock of 2434 16th st. nw. countered with, "Pay no attention to those who want to discontinue them."

M. E. Garrett says, "They give the column a more personal feeling," and Zora W. Butler of 630 A st. ne. gets right to the point with, "Throw them out? Not! And the noes have it."

The matter of the Give-Aways items was fought out along fine lines. (Or fe-lines, if you prefer.)

When Mrs. Gertrude Brown suggested that surplus kittens be painlessly put to sleep, to prevent the possibility of their some day becoming unwanted alley cats, I took exception.

I said that if I were a kitten, I'd rather live in an alley than not live at all.

Mrs. Frank J. McSherry of the Washington Animal Rescue League immediately got a communication from one of the group's members who wrote:

"... Mr. Gold is probably trying to be smart and funny, not realizing how much suffering his remark can cause."

I can assure the lady that (for once) I was not trying to be funny. Life is full of problems for mice, men and kittens—but death is a very drastic solution for those problems.

Mrs. H. Ritter of Shepherds-

Leonard

NEW YORK—Erich Maria Remarque learned this week that his books and the writings of Ernest Hemingway have been banned in the Soviet Union. Remarque learned of it via the Basle National Zeitung, which quoted Snamja, the Russian literary magazine. Snamja set down the party line, warning Soviet authors against imitating Hemingway and Remarque, and advising critics to be "very sharp" against such Western authors who write of war's disillusionment. "Both of them are against war and the heroics of war," is the Soviet magazine's complaint, "and they are robbing war of its glory by picturing only the ghastly parts of war. Soviet literature cannot be for pacifists."

Justice Lloyd Church, now serving for a second time on the New York Supreme Court bench, is exhibiting a jury notice he received from the Federal Court, warning him that if he fails to report for jury duty he'll be subject to a $200 fine. . . . The United States Weather Bureau had no knowledge of the North Atlantic storm which hit the S. S. America until the captain of the ship radioed for information. . . . After five years the Theatre Guild finally gave a pair of "Oklahoma" tickets to Alex, the cleaning man at the Guild offices. The next day Alex told the Guild officials: "Oklahoma" is an awful show. I happen to be a "Peer Gyn" man."

During the testimony of Emmet Lavery before the House Committee on Un-American Activities, committee member, Representative John McDowell, became interested in Lavery's description of his new play, "The Gentleman From Athens."

In this play the hero, portrayed by Anthony Quinn, is a Greek-American elected to Congress from Athens, Calif. . . . McDowell decided that this merited research, merely to satisfy his own curiosity. The Congressman checked and reported to Lavery that as a student of the ethnological backgrounds of our Representatives he can find no record of a Congressman who was born in Greece.

Moss Hart invited Max Gordon, the producer, to a steak dinner at his home Friday night. Gordon made the notation in his appointment book. Hart glanced at it and read: "Friday, steak." Episcure Gordon does not list dinner appointments under the name of his hosts, but under the names of the promised food specialty. . . . 4 Joan Crawford rushed back to Hollywood from New York because all her household help, except the nurse for her four children, quit their jobs.

town, W. Va., wonders whether the Give-Aways are a better solution. She asks: "Do you actually find good homes for these animals?"

Mrs. Henry P. Seidmann of the Ontario furnishes part of the answer in a note which says:

"I called up a number of the people who inserted notices in your column, and in all cases found that they were pleased with the results. Much good has been done by these items."

Similar votes in favor of retaining the Give-Aways have arrived from June Henderson of 2308 Ashmead pl., Leola F. Love of 101 E. Mason ave., Alexandria, Va., and many others.

So, whenever space will permit, the Give-Aways will continue to appear.

The Trotter Pollsters will now sit down and take a long rest.

FD RATHER NOT JOIN

A Washington chapter of the famed Caterpillar Club will be formed in the employees cafeteria of National Airport at 8 o'clock tonight.

Anybody who has made an emergency jump from a disabled aircraft is eligible for membership, and is invited to attend the meeting.

Jumps made in combat, practice leaps, exhibitions and similar descents won't do. In other words, the applicant can't qualify unless he's living on borrowed time.

I wonder how many will show up for the meeting—and if any of them will be women.

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

SEC In Wall Street Groove

By Drew Pearson

Washington.—Most notable economic achievement of the Roosevelt Administration probably was the Securities and Exchange Commission, established to protect gullible investors in the stock market. Even Republican critics admitted such a commission was necessary.

Working very quietly behind the scenes, however, the money boys have now just about sucked the SEC into the Wall Street groove. Located in Philadelphia, away from the focus of the Washington spotlight, the SEC has now become "just another commission."

Latest move in Wall Street's SEC infiltration is a plan to make SEC Commissioner Edward Hanrahan president of the business he is now supposed to regulate. Wall Streeters are secretly seeking to hire him as paid president of the stock exchange.

Present head of the stock exchange is Emil Schram, but his contract contains a juicy clause permitting him to resign any time and still draw an annual pension of $25,000.

Meanwhile, neither Hanrahan nor Caffrey has even bothered to move his home from New York to Philadelphia. They are known as "absentee" commissioners.

American Legion Rebellion Rank-and-file veterans, who tried to force a showdown on housing at the last American Legion convention, bucked up against the old guard and were thrown for a loss.

Inside story is that National Legion Commander James F. O'Neill, under pressure from disgruntled World War II vets, has ousted Richard Cadwallader as national housing chairman. It was Cadwallader who blocked a resolution favoring Government housing and openly backed the proposals of the real estate lobby.

The Unbelieving Germans The Germans have it all figured out why meatless Tuesdays are back again in the United States. They have two reasons: 1. We are hoarding food for war with Russia; 2. We are trying to force up prices.

This is the report brought back from Germany by Senator Harry Cain of Washington, who left the conducted tour of his fellow Senators and took off on his own in a borrowed jeep. Cain mingled and talked with the common people; scratching notes on the back of a Manila envelope.

Cain found that the average German refused to believe reports of the vast amount of food America is shipping overseas. He preferred to accept the line handed out by the Communists. Two favorite Nazi jokes were: "Yes, much food is coming from America—through the radio." "America is sending us 50 ships. Forty-eight are loaded with frauentens (denazification forms).

My wife is on vacation now. . . . And from all worry free. . . . Because she left the children here. . . . To keep me company. . . . Of course she needs the holiday. . . . Railroad Tax Reduction Minnesota's sour-visaged Congressman Knutson has made such a one-man show of his Ways and Means Committee that he now seems to regard himself as a quorum. Knutson showed up for the recent tax hearings 15 minutes early, followed by Rhode Island's Democratic Aime Forand.

"We ought to go right ahead," mumbled Knutson impatiently.

"Wait a minute," broke in Forand, long an outspoken critic of the stubby Minnesotan. I don't think this is at all respectful. We had better wait until we get a majority of the committee before we start to do business." Knutson sat down and fidgeted for a few minutes. After two or three others drifted in, he turned to Forand again.

"How about going ahead now?" he grumbled. "I don't feel so good and I want to get down to Florida."

Forand suggested they wait a little longer. Knutson brusquely banged his gavel and opened the hearing.
